

Beware of paving scams

Two incidents foiled on a single day

WILMINGTON - Springtime brings warm weather, flowers, and potholes. Along with the potholes comes an annual rite of paving crews promising to repair or replace damaged driveways and walkways. Most of these paving contractors are legitimate, advertise locally, and provide a professional service for their work. Unfortunately, there are also unscrupulous individuals who solicit door to door, promising to use "extra" asphalt to perform low cost repairs to a driveway. They usually target the elderly, driving through neighborhoods looking for smaller homes; homes that appear neatly tended by someone who might be retired, or perhaps a home that is in clear need of some maintenance following a tough winter.

Last week Wilmington Police investigated two unrelated incidents, one in Hathaway Acres and one in the neighborhood behind Rocco's Restaurant.

On Thursday Police noted a paving crew applying "cold patch" onto a driveway of an older gentleman in North Wilmington. The paving activity had also drawn the attention of a couple of concerned neighbors. Cold Patch is typically placed into potholes during the wintertime when asphalt plants are closed. The repair is generally meant to be temporary and the material does not set as securely as hot asphalt. Police noted that this job appeared to be using a mix-

Swain demolition challenged

Town Meeting Warrant reviewed

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - The old Swain School is slated for an expensive demolition, but some would like to save the history of one of the town's older buildings.

Other warrant articles will augment the way Wilmington buys water, buy police and fire vehicles, update several schools, set the budget, and even enforce marijuana laws.

Articles 3, 4, and 5 are annual articles that seek to pay unpaid bills (though there aren't any this year), do baking services, and pass the budget.

Article 6 seeks $119,700 for four replacement police cruisers (at $29,925 each), $180,000 for a fully equipped ambulance, $950,000 - $1.05 million for a new aerial ladder truck to replace the current 1986 model, $19,500 for a chair lift for the West Intermediate School, $161,000 for a new truck for the tree division, and $147,300 for a new side-walk plow.

Article 7 asks for $45,000 for software and hardware for the Fire Department to comply with a state mandate that towns submit standardized pre-hospital information. The new system will also aid in the rapid collection of ambulance receipts.

Article 8 is a major capital investment in technology equipment for the high school, seeking 51 Smartboards and 80 computers. The expenditure of $138,850 is consistent with the five-year master plan and will also help the high school with its accreditation.

Articles 9 and 10 need $60,000 to upgrade the fire alarm systems for the Wildwood School and $150,000

Does the town need ethics reform?

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Residents, elected and appointed officials, and residents gathered in the auditorium at Town Hall to tackle warrant articles in the last opportunity for public debate before hitting town meeting floor May 9.

The Planning Board went first with a series of related articles, beginning with the new Comprehensive Stormwater Management bylaw, in Article 28. Planning and Conservation Director Carole Hamilton introduced the bylaws as a necessary step in compliance with a federal mandate.

The bylaw offers a two-tier process geared at construction projects disturbing between 600 -10,000 square feet and those disturbing more than 10,000 square feet. The smaller size carries no fee and does not require a hearing, as the permit is processed administratively through the planning office. For projects requiring the larger permit, most companies that already use the site plan review or subdivision control already give almost enough information in their plans for the proposed stormwater permit.

There are a number of exceptions to the bylaw including agricultural uses,

Wilmington: no safe place for predators

WILMINGTON - Wilmington Police continue to investigate an incident that occurred in February when a 25-year-old Methuen man was arrested after he attempted to solicit a young Wilmington teenager over the computer for a late night rendezvous.

Police initially received a report from a concerned parent about the content of an instant message sent to her daughter. When police responded to the house and reviewed the conversation on the computer it was clear that the male party intended to engage in illegal activity with the minor. Police then made use of the computer to invite the male party to come to Wilmington. Directions were provided to an undisclosed location and the suspect provided his cell phone number over the computer, asking the minor to meet him when he arrived in Wilmington.

Police subsequently learned of the type of vehicle the suspect was driving. When he was observed by police at about 1:00 a.m. at the pre-arranged meeting point, he was stopped and detained. He

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

100 years ago, a daring robbery

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - Exactly 100 years ago, on March 18, 1909, residents of North Wilmington were awakened at 3:00 a.m. by a loud explosion. Burglars had blown up the post office safe at the North Wilmington railroad depot.

The Woburn Times reported that the door of the safe was blown 15 feet out into the waiting room of the depot. The door and woodwork of the office were reduced to kindling. The thieves made off with $50 cash and $170 worth of stamps.

The Times reported that the only clue to the identity of the burglars came from Reading, where men employed about the car barns reported seeing a team with two men about 2:00 a.m. Soon thereafter, a sound was heard, possibly a signal, and then another team passed, followed by an automobile, proceeding in the direction of North Wilmington.

There were also reports that same night of attempted burglaries in Reading, at the depot, at a crossing-tender's shack and a home.

The men working at the stable believed that the burglars had intended to visit the office of the Boston & Northern Street Railway at the barn, but were frightened away by the presence of a number of employees.

The Times said that Chief William Swain of the Wilmington police made a hurried examination of the premises, but without finding anything that would give a "clue" to the burglars, who are thought to be professionals. State police were also called to the scene.

In Wilmington, the story was reported in The Grill, a paper published "spasmodically" by the members of the Wilmington Grange. The story is presented below verbatim, to reflect the colorful writing style of the period.

initially denied any involvement in coming to Wilmington to meet anyone, however, when police called his cell phone number, the phone started ringing on his front seat. Police arrested Steven Estrella, age 25, of Methuen, and charged him with enticement of a minor.

The incident should again serve as a warning to parents to be aware of whom their children are communicating with on-line. Although instant messaging and telephone text messaging are common occurrences in today's lifestyle, the anonymous nature of chat rooms enable child predators to move effortlessly through the Internet looking for possible victims. Police frequently find that suspects portray themselves as being much younger than they really are. Enticements in the form of alcohol or drugs are often used to attract a younger individual. In many cases the minor is unaware of the suspect's intent until it is too late.

Parents are encouraged to monitor their children's Internet usage and to work with their cable provider to impose blocking devices to restrict access to certain types of content and participation. Sites such as Facebook and My Space provide a wealth of information for predators when naive children post personal information on the Internet. In addition to likes and dislikes, the sites often mention friends, hobbies and personal schedules. The information can provide a virtual roadmap to an individual intent on starting an illicit relationship.

One of the many missions of the Order Sons of Italy is to support the local community, in fulfilling that commitment, on Monday, March 16, 2009 the Wilmington Sons of Italy was proud to present a check in the amount of $1925.22 to Wilmington High School, for the purchase of an Automatic External Defibrillator. The AED will be available at the school during classroom sessions and also at night during evening activities. In attendance at the presentation was Head Nurse Doreen Crowe accepting the check, Charlie DeStefano - President Wilmington Sons of Italy presenting the check, and Wilmington High School - Principal Eric Tracy.

SMALL BUSINESS RETIREMENT PLANS

Everyone should have a retirement plan; so should every business, if only to protect the future of the business owners. Best of all there's a federal tax credit of 50 percent of the plan setup and administration costs—up to $500 a year—for the first three years.

SEP-IRA, a simplified employee pension, lets you contribute as much as 25 percent of compensation, up to $49,000, and not necessarily every year. It's best for sole proprietors, because the company must pay in the same amount for employees.

SIMPLE IRA is a savings incentive match. Employees put in their own contributions; the boss must add 2 or 3 percent of salary.

SOLO 401(K) lets sole proprietors save 20 to 25 percent plus an additional $15,500, up to $49,000. A spouse can participate, too.

TRADITIONAL 401(K) is similar for large firms.

DEFINED BENEFIT PLAN is ideal for older sole proprietors with high incomes who want to maximize pension benefits.

What's right for your retirement savings? Check with the small-business specialist at:

ture of re-cycled asphalt and that the material was being spread by shovel, and then set in place by stepping on the product. When police spoke with the homeowner he appeared confused by the situation and had been told by one of the workers that they had "leftover asphalt" from another job in the area. He not been told how much the work would cost him.

Police found it strange that the small dump truck had no markings to indicate the owner and that the vehicle was registered in New Hampshire. Upon further inquiry police found that nobody in the crew had a valid driver's license. The individuals were then ordered to remove all of the cold patch from the driveway and were told to cease solicitation in Wilmington until they complied with the by-law requiring them to seek a permit. A licensed driver was brought to the scene to remove the truck.

Later on Thursday afternoon police responded to a house on Phillips Avenue where a resident reported paying a $900.00 deposit to a paving crew that put down a light coat of asphalt in her small driveway. This crew also applied this coat by tamping it down with their feet. The crew made arrangements to come back and finish the job on Friday for another $1,500.00. When police arrived to inspect the work they were not impressed by the quality of the work. A contracting crew working across the street also commented on the sloppiness of the job. The homeowner's check was quickly cashed Thursday afternoon.

When the crew returned to "finish the job" on Friday they were turned away by the homeowner. When police caught up with them on Shawshen Avenue they claimed to have a truck full of asphalt to finish the job. Once again, nobody in the truck could provide a driver's license. The driver of the truck Esau Stanley, age 17, of Londonberry was arrested and charged with operating without a driver's license. The Massachusetts State Police Truck Team was summoned to the scene to determine whether there were any equipment violations. A State Trooper subsequently determined that the truck could not be operated and it was towed, hot top and all. Police also advised this crew not to return without seeking the proper permits for solicitation.

Although most paving contractors are legitimate these paving scams are an annual occurrence throughout the area. Many of these crews travel south and west for the winter and return to New England during the spring. Residents are encouraged to keep an eye on their elderly neighbors for this type of activity. One tip-off is the lack of lettering on an out-of-state dump truck. Many times the resident will agree to a set price for the job however when the job is completed the price is highly inflated. The workers use scare tactics and claim that the homeowner misunderstood the original agreement or they state that the job was much more extensive than originally determined. Victims have been known to pay well over $10,000 for a less than professional job. In some cases the suspects will actually drive the homeowner to the bank to force them to transfer funds or to cash the check.

The Police Departments throughout the area remain vigilant for this type of activity however residents are encouraged to report any activity that they deem to be suspicious.

landscaping, driveways, fencing, utilities, decks, patios, and septic system replacements.

Kristen Costa, Licensing Agent with L.A. Associates, called the proposed bylaw "cumbersome and costly," and asked that the 10,000 square foot threshold be reconsidered up to an acre.

Representative Jim Miceli (D, Wilmington, Tewksbury), faced sharp questioning from Planning Board members for his Article 30, an act aimed at ethics reform on the local level.

Chapter 268B, at the state level, requires that people who hold public office or are public employees must disclose their household income within parameters (i.e. between $50,000-$75,000), their investments, and other financial interests. It also requires disclosure of household members, such as a spouse and dependent children.

"This is on a state level. I want this to apply on a local level," Miceli told the Crier in a phone interview Monday, prior to Tuesday's public hearing. "If you had a town manager that had other interests, I think the public would have a right to know this."

Miceli was one of the filers of this bill on Beacon Hill to apply to elected and appointed boards and certain public employees in municipalities. However, in light of the difficulty of finding enough citizens willing to serve on various boards in the smaller towns in the Commonwealth, the bill will likely undergo some major changes as it moves through committee. Miceli then petitioned for this article on Wilmington's warrant. He did not place a similar article in Tewksbury.

Though Miceli explained that the bill is not meant to target any particular board or person, several board members were not convinced. Article 30 seeks disclosures from the Planning Board, the Board of Appeals, the Board of Selectmen, and the Town Manager.

"Are you getting inundated with letters? What is going on in Wilmington that we need this here? You want to know my finances? My wife's finances? My kids?" asked Planning Board Chairman Michael Sorrentino, adding that he felt it was extremely intrusive to single out people in one town.

Several questions targeted why the bill was filed in Wilmington and not Tewksbury.

"I filed it statewide, and then when I saw problems there, I filed it locally," Miceli told the Crier Monday. "Really, no special reason; and I'm a resident of Wilmington, and wanted to see how it worked here. If Tewksbury likes it, they can copy it for themselves."

The disclosures under 268B are typically required for the household, and not just the office holder or employee, to prevent someone from placing their financial interests all in the name of a spouse, for instance, and avoid reporting them.

Selectman Michael Newhouse noted that in addition to annual disclosures, 268B also requires information about debt, how the debt is secured, as well as real estate interests. Calling it, "tremendously cumbersome and burdensome," Newhouse echoed sentiments of other members that feel residents will be reluctant to serve in public office with the advent of such a law.

In Monday's conversation with the Crier, Miceli stated that he had not encountered one person opposed to the article, which he says offers voters a clear picture of where their officials' interests lie. At Tuesday's hearing, Miceli told attendees that he was "surprised at the hostility."

Others pointed out that officials are already subject to state ethics laws and elected officials must comply with campaign finance laws. However, this article would require a more proactive approach so citizens would know in advance how their elected officials stand. One finance committee member stated that residents could just "ask."

"Town Meeting is the final arbiter," said Miceli.

The Planning Board also took up Articles 34 and 35, which seek to rezone two lots from neighborhood business to general business.

Article 37 would transfer a parcel of town owned land on Poplar Street to the Conservation Commission. Petitioner Keith Saxon addressed the boards on the article. The land abuts a 55-acre parcel of town conservation land that is currently inaccessible to streets. The land is ideal for walking trails, harbors wildlife, and a resource for families in the area to explore nature. Other parcels in the area have sold for only $15,000 but that was before the downturn in the real estate market.

Town Manager Michael Cairra pointed out that the land is already public, but by classifying the land as conservation, the piece could not be turned into a park or playground with play structures.

"I wouldn't want to stifle the use of the property," said Cairra.

Even though it is town land today does not necessarily mean it is available for public access or public use.

"The best value is to make it conservation land and let everyone use it," said Saxon. "And its free - Wilmington already owns it."

Articles 38, 39, and 40 seek to resolve litigation.

James Morris petitioned for Article 41, which seeks for the town to sell the lot at 41 Salem Street to him, after making routine determinations that the town does not need it for municipal purposes. Morris told the boards that his property abuts the parcel, which has become a dump in recent years. He works to keep it clean, having taken out over twenty abandoned tires on the parcel during the last household hazardous materials day. He said that the land is very wet and that he does not think it is a buildable lot.

Another abutter, Dorothy Getty, raised concern that Morris might build on the lot eventually. She agreed that, as wet as it is, any change to the land may affect her property and home, possibly leading to basement flooding which has been a problem in the past. Getty, a resident over 40 years, states that she would prefer to see the parcel turned into conservation land.

The recommendations of the Finance Committee and the Planning Board for approval or disapproval for each article will appear in the Town Meeting warrant, which will be mailed to each Wilmington household in mid-April. Town Meeting will be held at the Wilmington High School gymnasium beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Letters to the editor

2nd Annual Breast of Friends Fundraiser Another success

Dear Editor,
The team 'Breast of Friends' would like to extend their sincere appreciation for the support which they received at their 2nd Annual Breast of Friends Fundraiser this past Friday, March 13th. Held at the Tewksbury Country Club in Tewksbury, more than 500 people showed up in support of cancer research. Monies raised from this event will go to the Susan G. Komen 3 Day breast cancer walk, which the team will be participating in at the end of July. Also, a portion of the funds will go toward the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life, which is being held for the first time in Wilmington this May. Thank you also to the many friends and local businesses who donated over 40 raffle items and to the Tewksbury Country Club for allowing us to have such a great night! In such a tough economic time, it is a testament that so many people are eager to fund cancer research to find a cure for cancer. There are far too many people affected by cancer these days and every dollar helps to bring researchers one step closer to the cure.

As the Breast of Friends team takes on the quest of walking 18 hours straight at the Relay for Life and then again walk 60 miles in the 3 Day they will honor each and every one of those in attendance that evening as well as those that have made donations and were unable to attend.

If you would like to make a donation you can visit www.the3day.org or www.wilmingtonrfl.com and search for the team 'Breast of Friends'.

The team members; Nancy Sullivan, Karen Burke, Robin Kavanaugh, Jen Savosik and Kelly Sullivan look forward to next year's event. We hope you can join us again!

Service to the community

Dear Editor,
I am constantly awed by the selflessness of the individuals in our community when it comes to supporting our troops.

As Town Crier readers know very well, Local Heroes gets together every Wednesday evening at the Knights of Columbus in Wilmington to assemble care packages for the troops serving in harm's way.

Wilmington High School's Rotary Interact Club held a collection drive over the last few months to benefit Local Heroes. The club brought all of the collected items and funds to last Wednesday's meeting, and helped assemble packages. As a result, we sent out 36 packages. And the funds they raised paid the entire cost of postage, which came out to more than $600.

Thank you to the Interact Club. They are an outstanding group of young people who understand the importance of service to one's community.

Sincerely,
Louis Cimaglia

Proud of Tewksbury Police

(Editor's note: this letter was sent to the Tewksbury Police, and is being published here at the request of the author.)

Dear Sir/Madam:
I write this letter to bring your attention to some fine officers you serve alongside and would like to thank you, as well as the four of them, for all the help they were in my time of need.

On January 30th, 2009 my sister-in-law and I were on our way to an appointment when my car broke down (fortunately right across from your Tewksbury Police Station). I entered your Station for help and was promptly approached by Dispatcher Sullivan asking how he could be of assistance. After informing him of my predicament, he called AAA for me only to hear it would be at least two hours until they could take care of the problem (they had their hands full).

While I was in the station Dispatcher Sullivan informed a Police Cruiser of my car's location to which they responded by parking behind it so it would be more visible to oncoming traffic while the two Officers (Officer Kathy McLeod and Officer Nicosia), joined by Supt. Voto and Dispatcher Sullivan, tried to help us figure out how to get my car back in working order and on our way. We had no luck, but not for their lack of trying; they gave it their all, checking every possibility they could think of. We were able to get my car towed, not through the efforts of AAA, but through the help of your fine officers who made sure we kept our appointment by waiting for the tow truck to arrive (Supt. Voto, Officer Nicosia, and Dispatcher Sullivan) while Officer Kathy McLeod drove us to our destination (making sure we'd be alright before she left).

These officers went all out to help us in our time of need while it seemed AAA could've cared less. It's officers like these who make me proud to be a resident of Tewksbury (39 years now) and I fully appreciate all the help they do for us every day. Thank you once again and please thank these officers again on my behalf.

Sincerely,
Dorothy Menize
Tewksbury

Betsy's Best Bets

by Betsy Woods McGuire

Green and Serene

The universe is a continuous web. Touch it at any point and the whole web quivers. (Stanley Kunitz)

For those of us who have gardens, regardless of the weather, we've already started to scrutinize the earth, looking for the tip of something green pushing through. The Daffodils and Crocus are up but for me Spring isn't officially here until I spot new growth on my Clematis, which usually happens in late March.

Only two weeks ago it snowed all day. I love Spring snow - my mother called it "poor man's fertilizer." One of the best reasons for living in New England is Winter - it's the drama of Winter weather, and the peacefulness of a snow-covered garden at rest and the anticipation of renewal, so much a part of being alive.

Last fall I rearranged most of my good-sized perennial flower garden. So I'm anxious to see how well all of those transplants have adjusted to their new locations. And one "mystery" plant in particular has a newfound status, now that after many years I know its proper name (I'll get back to that).

On a glorious October day last year, the Rose Kennedy Greenway was dedicated. For decades I had followed every story about the depression of the Central Artery, commonly tagged The Big Dig. Demolishing the ugly, noisy overhead steel and asphalt highway meant the North End would be reunited with the rest of the City after more than fifty years. And the fact that the City of Boston made the decision to not sell this valuable land for commercial development was euphoria for me.

Tens of thousands of people showed up to take part in the festivities celebrating the opening of the one-mile-long landscaped footpath, atop the tunnel, which replaced the once elevated roadway. The atmosphere was downright jubilant - and for good reason. The Greenway is spectacular - a curving promenade connecting a series of parks, with grand gardens, wide sidewalks, tree-lined intersecting streets and boulevards, pretty plazas and historical landmarks. The Mother's Walk, a kind of cobblestone path, has inscribed names on each stone, some of whom you will recognize. With a contribution, the names of loved ones can be inscribed, forever honoring them, while also becoming a part of Boston's history.

Just think, we now have this unique passageway meandering through the heart of the City, bordered with native plants, shrubs, trees and flowerbeds. A refuge from the City's congestion, the Greenway is a place to walk, relax, rest, reflect - and to eat! Starting in the North End (Food!) and ending in Chinatown (Food!), deciding where to have lunch is a tough call.

There must have been something in the air that day last fall - you could call it a spell or a kind of "high" that pulled me in. For the first time in my life I signed up to volunteer my time to help keep the Greenway green. For someone who is not a joiner or a team player, my enthusiasm for wanting to be part of such a worthwhile project even surprised me.

A few months later via e-mail I was contacted by the Conservancy and asked to fill out a lengthy form about my interest and experience in gardening, the amount of time I could give and so on. There was lots of space for comments so I noted that "I love to weed." I'm sure they thought this had to be a typo, that I must have meant, read or feed or seed!

Not that I don't have enough to do in my own yard - but I picture myself hanging around with other volunteers and rubbing elbows with members of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, picking their brains and having terribly interesting conversations with people who talk about gardens, not about sports(!), or worse, about themselves. I can see myself cooling off under the huge Wisteria-covered trellis at Christopher Columbus Park, gazing out across Boston Harbor. But most of all I want to be part of educating the public about the importance of protecting and preserving open space, with concern for the environment first and foremost.

Back to the "mystery" plant in my yard. While relishing the beauty of the day, canvassing every curve and corner of the Greenway, I stopped dead. Right there on the top of a small embankment was a cluster of plants (small bushes) just like the one in my yard that I had been unable to identify, in spite of much effort. Eureka! There was no name tag to be found but as luck would have it, a volunteer just happened to be standing not far away and he was with the Massachusetts

Horticultural Society. Needless to say, he knew the name; it was Joe Pye Weed, sometimes called Little Joe or Chocolate Joe Pye. Off the top of his head he knew the history of the plant and was able to answer all of my questions about how to keep "Joe" healthy and thriving. Looking back, this was the moment when I knew I'd found myself - or should I say, I'd found a "club" that I actually wanted to join.

There must be hundreds and hundreds of books on gardening in print, with good information, instruction, tips and ideas. As useful as these books are, word of mouth, talking to other gardeners is still the best way to learn. Then there's the "experience" of gardening beyond the ability to grow plants. My garden bible is "The Wild Braid" (a poet reflects on a century in the garden) by Stanley Kunitz. At 95 years old Kunitz became Poet Laureate, succeeding Robert Pinsky. Over Kunitz's long life he received numerous awards including the Pulitzer Prize, Bollingen Prize, National Endowment for the Arts Senior Fellowship and on and on. Many considered Kunitz to be the most distinguished and accomplished poet in the United States. He split his time between Manhattan and Provincetown where his 2000 square-foot terraced garden was his source of inspiration and strength.

"The Wild Braid" is a collection of prose, poetry and conversations, along with Kunitz's recollections and thoughts on the creative process and the cycle of life. It was the metaphysics of gardening that gripped Stanley Kunitz's soul - "what the garden signified, its eagerness and insistence and drive to live, grow and bear fruit" as Kunitz put it so beautifully. So you might say a Public Garden, the Rose Kennedy Greenway, represents the essence of our collective recognition of that rhythm. From one's own plot, to Earthday everyday, let's spread the word, get down and get dirty.

Letter to the editor

A vote for McMillan

Dear Editor,

On April 4th Voters in Tewksbury will have the opportunity to vote for Christian McMillan. Chris will prioritize the shaky financial malaise Tewksbury citizens are now facing.

McMillan will demonstrate his leadership abilities, implementing fresh common sense ideas that will benefit all citizens of Tewksbury.

McMillan is a small business owner in Tewksbury. He understands the hazards every business owner faces. He too has faced rising taxes at a time when revenues were declining.

Overcoming the burdens every business owner faces is never easy; however, in spite of the obstacles, McMillan has been able to grow his business.

The excessive tax and spend policies taxpayers face are certainly not compassionate. A more controlled thought-out policy will allow more residents on low and fixed incomes to remain in their homes. It will also open new doors allowing our young to return to Tewksbury following college or military service.

Proposition 2 1/2 override continues to raise its ugly head. Overrides are little more than kicking the can down the road. Instead of depending on overrides McMillan will offer fresh alternatives to tax increases.

Government programs that have failed time and again only to be greeted by funding increases will face defeat unless significant well thought-out changes are introduced.

We all want to help friends in need, but there must be limits. The many citizens that require taxpayer support will continue to receive it. The people of Tewksbury will not let them down.

McMillan hopes to work with others eliminating, stabilizing and reducing unfunded education mandates from Beacon Hill. Many mandates make little sense to the people paying for them. It is time for Beacon Hill to once again take a more active roll.

I believe that you will find the sincerity, support and trust that you have been searching for by electing Christian McMillan as our Selectman.

Christian McMillan hopes to help all live a better life in Tewksbury and we can help him accomplish that goal by offering our support and finally our vote on April 4th.

A vote for Wilson

Dear Editor,

To paraphrase Einstein, "You can't solve problems with the same level of thinking that created them." We need new ideas, a new energy and a new approach in our leadership of this great Town of Tewksbury and that is why I am supporting Scott Wilson for Selectman.

I have known Scott for over 20 years and he has always had a knack of bringing together people, with many different perspectives, to solve difficult problems. With the existing challenges that our town faces, that is an area of competence that we especially need right now.

He is not an individual that will make uninformed statements just because he thinks it is what people want to hear. When it comes to his decision-making, Scott has always invested the time and energy to communicate with all of the parties involved to gather the appropriate facts and opinions. Sometimes our town leaders have to make tough decisions and I know that the decisions that Scott makes as a Selectman will be in the best interest of our town and not just one particular group or individual.

I believe that his experience as a leader within Verizon and now as a Tewksbury business owner has prepared him to help guide our town through this fiscal crisis. As a growth-oriented Selectman, I know that he will be committed to expanding the revenue of this town through economic development and not on the backs of us taxpayers. Scott has the experience to work with all the departments in town to not only develop the best short-term solutions, but set a long-term vision as well.

Tewksbury needs a leader with new ideas, new energy and a new approach and I am fully confident that Scott is the right person to help lead our town through these challenging times. On April 4th, I will be casting my vote for Scott Wilson for Selectman.

Regards,
Jim Wentworth
Tewksbury

A vote for Champoux

Dear Editor,

Mike Champoux's candidacy for the Wilmington Board of Selectman is one more example of his willingness to step up and volunteer to improve our community and the lives of others. I had the good fortune of meeting Mike through our local parish STAMP organization. This group works to improve people housing situations, originally in the mining region of Kentucky, and now in the Gulf Coast area impacted by Katrina.

I have traveled with Mike to the Gulf Coast and banged nails along side him. The thing that struck me most about Mike is his willingness to step in and do the jobs others would not. He always brought new and creative ideas to the table. At the same time, he was also willing to listen to others and incorporate their ideas into the final plan: traits that will serve him well as a Selectman.

In addition, Mike is a member of the K of C. Once a member, he wanted to help the Wilmington council continue its efforts to be a positive force in the community and increase membership. He is one of the leaders at the K of C, an organization that contributes to the community with little fanfare.

When the "Moving Wall" Vietnam Memorial came to Wilmington, we took our younger children down to witness this great testament to our veterans. When we got there, who do we see volunteering to help the organizers? Mike Champoux.

Mike possesses a strong sense of duty to help others and improve the community. He is intelligent, innovative and financially conservative, while being compassionate and understanding the need to invest for the future. I believe he is an excellent candidate for the Board of Selectman and encourage the residents of Wilmington to elect him on April 25.

A vote for Wilson

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my support for Scott Wilson as a candidate for the Tewksbury Board of Selectmen in the approaching April 4th election. I met and came to know Scott through our affiliations with various youth organizations in town, and quickly grew to respect him as a family man, member of the community, business owner, and most importantly friend. It was through Scott's encouragement that I chose to become actively involved on the Board of Directors in both Tewksbury Youth Football and Tewksbury Youth Baseball after coaching for him in TYB.

When my husband and I chose to move to Tewksbury and raise our family in his hometown, I was excited about all the town had to offer. Over the past few years, however, I have grown increasingly concerned about the direction the town has taken. I see a town divided into arguing factions over heated issues that affect each and every one of our daily lives.

I am confident that Scott's success and expertise in the private sector will carry over flawlessly to the public. With a personal and business stake in the community, Scott Wilson also brings a unique perspective to the candidates. Scott's ties to the community are far reaching and touch many aspects including education, youth organizations, and private businesses.

Seeing how dedicated Scott is to each of his endeavors, and the efficiency and skill with which he attacks each, has made my choice to endorse Scott a logical one. On April 4th I will proudly cast my vote for Scott Wilson, confident that he is exactly the candidate that Tewksbury needs to mend it and restore our pride in a town that we all love!

Sincerely,
Lori Martel

Keeping our kids safe in the Internet Age

By Gerry Leone
Middlesex District Attorney

Times have changed. That certainly rings true to any parent today, as our kids are growing up in a vastly different world than we did. There is no greater example of that changing environment than the explosion of technology in our children's everyday lives. It's hard to believe how prevalent cell phones, text messaging, instant messaging, and social networking sites like MySpace and Facebook have become as the normal forms of communication for many of our kids.

While the challenges have changed, our responsibility remains the same - and that is to protect our children in every way that we can.

Let's consider some of those safety challenges. The prevalence of the Internet and other new modes of communication means that one bad choice made by our kids now could have a lasting impact on them. Look no further than the recent "sexting" cases that have arisen during the course of the last few months as examples. In one case, a 13-year-old girl took a partially-nude photo of herself with her cell phone camera and then forwarded that photo onto a boyfriend via text message. What was a bad choice to begin with was compounded when that image was forwarded on to many other kids throughout her school. She has now lost all control of that image, can never fully recover it, and will never know when or where it could reappear.

The anonymity of the Internet also presents serious dangers to our kids. Our office has seen numerous cases in which children have willingly provided personal information about themselves to strangers over the Internet. Even more frightening, some have even made arrangements to meet those strangers in person. These seemingly innocent mistakes by our children could have potentially lifelong and oftentimes tragic consequences.

A survey conducted by Emerson Hospital illustrates the troubling predicament we as parents face. The study, which surveyed 8,000 middle and high school students, revealed that more than 24% of high school students reported having given information about themselves over the Internet to someone with whom they had never met (19.5% of eighth graders had done so). According to the same survey, 14.8% of high school students reported having met someone in person with whom they had initially contacted online (13.6% of eighth graders and 12.8% of sixth graders reported doing so).

There is no doubt that, as these technologies become more prevalent, a growing number of our kids are engaging in this kind of risky behavior at younger and younger ages.

So, what can parents do? Here are some recommendations.

Educate yourself

While keeping up with technological trends may seem daunting to even the most technologically savvy among us, it is absolutely vital that parents know what our kids are doing, who they are communicating with, and how they are communicating. Websites such as NetSmartz.org and Wiresafety.org have important information to help parents educate themselves about the latest safety trends. We at the Middlesex District Attorney's Office also offer trainings to parents, teachers and students in communities throughout the county on Internet Safety. If you would like to schedule a training in your community, please contact our office at 781-897-6800.

Talk to your kids

Keeping an open line of communication with your children is a fundamental tenet that never goes out of style. With the explosion of the Internet and other technologies, it is more important now than ever that you are engaged and communicating with your children about these issues. You must constantly be asking questions. Find out what they are doing online. Ask them whom they are talking to. Ask them to spend some time and walk you through their social networking site of choice. Make sure that they know not to provide any personal information to someone who they don't know. Explain to them the dangers of sending any images of themselves out over the Internet or via text message. Keeping a strong line of communication open now can go a long way in preventing your child from making mistakes in the future.

Set Limits

We are our children's parents before we are their friends. That means that we must be willing to set strict ground rules for our children's cell phone and Internet use. Among the strategies that we recommend is placing the family computer in an open room, like the living room, rather than allowing unsupervised access to a computer in your child's bedroom. If your children use laptops, the same rules still apply. Explain to them that a condition of using a computer or cell phone is that you may be periodically checking their browsing and texting history, as well as their MySpace or Facebook pages. If you believe your child needs a cell phone, consider giving them a phone without the capability to send or receive an image or set a condition that you will be reviewing their photos periodically. Engage age-appropriate parental controls on your home computer, such as logging and filtering. While your child may not always like these rules, remind them that this isn't about punishing them or not trusting them, it's about protecting them because we love them.

There is no greater priority for any of us as parents than keeping our kids safe. The challenges will continue to evolve, but by continuing to be engaged and proactive in dealing with these issues, we can all better protect our children in the Internet Age.

Gerry Leone is the District Attorney of Middlesex County.

A vote for Miller

Dear Editor,

As Vice-Chairman of the Finance Committee, I see firsthand the impact the fiscal crisis is having on our community. As never before, decisions are being made that cut not the fat, but indeed right to the bone, right to the very core of our town. The storm that is swirling around our schools, and the difficult infrastructure choices facing Tewksbury has the potential to pit side against side. As a candidate for School Committee, Jayne Miller knows that any successful partnership requires flexibility and a sound understanding of the position from which one's partner sits.

Jayne Miller has, through her profession, been immersed in town issues. She has built trust and credibility with town leaders, and takes the time to listen and understand. As a parent, Jayne knows the concerns of Tewksbury parents for their children in our schools. And as a member of the BAC, Jayne is being proactive in trying to find solutions to our school funding needs. Jayne has integrity, interest, and imagination. She wants to solve the problems facing us in a productive and constructive way.

I encourage you to vote with me on April 4th for Jayne Miller.

Ron Hall
Tewksbury

A vote for Miller

Dear Editor,

As a parent, I value education. I want my children to have the strongest academic foundation possible to prepare them for their lives ahead. However, we can't give them the best start if their classes are crowded or the roof is falling down around them. As a town, we must come together and value our schools. Tewksbury should be the first choice for our children. Sports, academics and clubs all can play a part in shaping an educational experience. School committee candidate, Jayne Miller, understands this.

Jayne will bring transparency and accountability to the budget process. She will work to rebuild confidence in our schools by harnessing creative ideas to solve problems, find new sources of revenue to offset fees and augment activities and enrichment. Jayne wants to see a three-year financial plan for the school department. She wants to work cooperatively with other districts in our region to amplify our voices on Beacon Hill and Capitol Hill to improve funding for mandates. She also wants to see a community service requirement at the high school - continuing a rich tradition in Tewksbury of community involvement. Working together, cooperatively, as a community we can have the town we want and survive through these financial times, charting a course for a stronger future.

I am voting for Jayne Miller for School Committee and ask you, my Tewksbury neighbors, friends, fellow coaches and parents to do the same.

ceries for the area's food pantries with the cash donated.

Gwen and Ryan said they had a great time saying hi to old friends and meeting members of the community. "We want to thank everyone who dropped by with donations. It will mean so much to the area pantries and those they serve."

If you missed the drive, there is still time to donate. Please drop by NORTHEAST REALTY PARTNERS at 362 Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington, MA or call Gwen or Ryan at (978) 657-7010 for more information.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations".

This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment. Its distinctly "Navy" flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a Sailor.

Tewksbury Memorial High School hosts a program on school accreditation

By Christine L. McGrath, Ph.D.
Superintendent of Schools

Tewksbury Memorial High School will host a program on the important topic of High School Accreditation on Monday, March 23, 2009 at 6:30 p.m. in the school library. Accreditation is a very important status for any high school. We continue to enjoy full accreditation.

The presenter will be Janet Allison, Associate Commissioner for the Commission on Public Secondary Schools from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. Ms. Allison will review the many steps that a school must take to retain its accreditation. She will also address the status of our high school in relation to this important process and respond to any questions about the process.

Accreditation is an important and a complicated process. We hope that many parents, guardians, and community members will attend this important program to learn about this process. Thank you.

Tewksbury launches Stormwater Awareness Campaign

TEWKSBURY - As part of its ongoing "Stormwater Matters" education effort, Tewksbury is conducting an ad campaign to raise public awareness about stormwater. The ads may be seen on cable television, the municipal website, and as posters and post-cards.

Stormwater is the runoff water after it rains or snows. Stormwater picks up litter, sand, bacteria, and chemicals as it flows over the land and into storm drains, and it carries these pollutants to our streams, ponds, wetlands and coastal waters. Stormwater pollution can harm water quality, making waterways less usable for drinking, swimming, fishing, boating, and wildlife.

The new stormwater ad campaign focuses on lawn care, car care, picking up after pets, not littering, keeping storm drains clean, and low impact development techniques. Each ad gives practical and easy tips for how to prevent stormwater pollution. These colorful ads have catchy slogans such as: "over-feeding our lawns may green our rivers and ponds," "oil and water don't mix," "please scoop the poop," "what's going down your storm drain?", "storm drains are not for dumping," and "put a LID on stormwater pollution."

Tewksbury obtained the stormwater ads through a "Stormwater Matters" education program run by the SuAsCo Watershed Community Council, a non-profit alliance located in the Sudbury-Assabet-Concord River Basin.

"We hope the ads catch on and people follow these simple tips," says Nancy Bryant, Executive Director of the SuAsCo Watershed Community Council. "Everyday activities can make a real difference in keeping stormwater clean and improving the water quality of our rivers, lakes, and coastal waters. Preventing stormwater pollution is far less expensive than cleaning up waterways after pollution has occurred."

The ads (posters, index cards and book markers) can be seen at the Tewksbury Department of Public Works, Police Department, Town Hall, Town Hall Annex, Public Library, recreation building and School Administrative Building. Our local cable channel will also be running the ads periodically.

Watch for the stormwater ads and help spread the word: Stormwater Matters!

Mid-March Thursday hours at the Friends' Book Store

WILMINGTON - Yes! This is an extra opportunity to do some weekDAY shopping. The little bookstore, located next door to the Wilmington Memorial Library, 183 Middlesex Avenue, will be open for a one-time-only Thursday, March 19, from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m., in addition to the usual Saturday hours of 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and Sunday hours of 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

The store has just received a huge collection of children's fiction, serials and others, in pristine condition. This past weekend brought a lot of first-timers to the bookstore, and gardening and outdoor project books were high on everyone's lists. Celebrate the first day of spring at the end of this week. It is time to think of lean cuisine and getting back into swimsuits or summer wear - check out the cookbooks and diet and exercise books. Keep your eyes open along the walkways for signs of spring, and watch your step!

Thank you all for your continued donations and support. Pick up a Friends brochure to learn more about how the Friends support the library. For information about the bookstore contact Leslie Dietrich by telephone at 978.657.6536, or via email at lesd4@verizon.net.

Abandoned cats need your help

WILMINGTON - They're out there, even if you don't see them. Feral cats — domesticated cats living in the wild — are our unseen neighbors.

Some of these cats have reproduced over a few generations, but not many. They do get picked up by animal control, but there always seems to be a new supply of cats, and they're usually not related to the ones previously picked up.

In other words, people are abandoning them.

Wilmington Animal Control Officer Ellen Sawyer goes out regularly trying to catch these cats with the assistance of the Stoneham Cat Society, which comes to the aid of cats in many towns. Recently, she has been trapping some cats that she calls "cliff dwellers," living in rock abutments in an industrial area. It is heartbreaking, she said, to see their small faces peering out from small crevices in the rocks, cold, wet, frightened and hungry.

What's worse is when she's been going to see some particular cats for weeks, finding and attempting to trap them, only to have them disappear. Cats don't generally move on. Something probably happened to them.

Cats do not fare well when abandoned. Lacking food and shelter, they must face weather, disease, cars, predatory wildlife and fights with other cats.

Yet, some people feel that the best way to get rid of an unwanted cat is to take it somewhere and dump it. For people who have unwanted cats or kittens, there are alternatives. The Stoneham Cat Society and the Woburn Feral Cat Coalition trap feral cats, accept unwanted cats, and try to find good homes for them. These groups consist of hard-working people who use their own time, money and resources to help the cats.

As most cats, the cats are abandoned in a place where contact, so they were obviously abandoned. The volunteers give the cats a home, have them checked by a vet, get them their shots, and make sure they are spayed or neutered. But adoption is an important part of this process. There are always more cats coming in.

Spaying or neutering a cat is extremely important, both to manage population and to make the cat a better pet. An extremely good service is available from the Catmobile, which will spay a cat for $75. Here's the best part: the package includes a microchip, an exam, spaying, vaccination, flea treatment and deworming. The Catmobile phone is 888-495-7729, or email spay-mass@mrfrs.org.

The Stoneham Cat Society and the Woburn Feral Cat Coalition have cats available for adoption, and always welcome donations of food, litter, cages or money. Volunteers are needed for foster care. There is a fee for adoptions.

If you can help, contact the Stoneham Cat Society, P.O. Box 80096 Stoneham, MA 02180 or the Woburn Feral Cat Coalition, P.O. Box 3127, Woburn, MA 01888, or email Woburncats@gmail.com.

TEWKSBURY - ON Palm Sunday, April 5th the Tewksbury United Methodist Church will present "Face of God" an amazing one man show at 2:00 p.m.

Surette's one-hour show is an artistic and theatrical experience incorporating rapid-fire artwork, multi colored lights, video images on 40-foot screens, and dramatic music. At the show, Rob will be artistically celebrating the life of our Lord by creating seven (7) portraits of Christ as part of this astonishing theatrical performance. This show is sure to be an exciting and inspiring religious experience for all who attend.

WORCESTER - The following local residents were among 823 students from Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) named to the university's Dean's List for academic excellence for the fall 2008 semester.

Ernest Mello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Mello of Wilmington, is a freshman majoring in Engineering - to be declared Steven Southard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Southard of Tewksbury, is a sophomore majoring in Mechanical Engineering.

About a quarter of the undergraduate population achieved the criteria required for WPI's fall 2008 Dean's List. The criteria for the WPI Dean's List differ from most other universities as WPI does not compute a grade point average (GPA). Instead, WPI defines the Dean's List by the amount of work completed at the A level in courses and projects.

"WPI is home to some of this nation's brightest students," said Provost and Senior Vice President John Orr. "Whether studying science, engineering, math, business, or the humanities, they are committed to obtaining a deep understanding of fundamental concepts and also to putting those concepts into action, while developing broadly as adults in today's complex society. We are exceptionally proud of these young men and women, and we applaud their commitment to excellence."

About Worcester Polytechnic Institute

Founded in 1865 in Worcester, Mass., WPI was one of the nation's first engineering and technology universities. WPI's 14 academic departments offer more than 50 undergraduate and graduate degree programs in science, engineering, technology, management, the social sciences, and the humanities and arts, leading to bachelor's, master's and PhD degrees. WPI's world-class faculty work with students in a number of cutting-edge research areas, leading to breakthroughs and innovations in such fields as biotechnology, fuel cells, information security, materials processing, and nanotechnology. Students also have the opportunity to make a difference to communities and organizations around the world through the university's innovative Global Perspective Program. ## Tech students go global BILLERICA - It isn't always easy to gauge the success of an educational field trip.

But sometimes, it is.

Earlier this month, Shawsheen Valley Technical High School instructor Bob Guelli took a group of 18 sophomores on a visit to a pair of companies in Mass., Sasaki Associates and Continuum, to see what professional drafters, architects and engineers do during their day to day work weeks.

"This was the real deal," said Guelli. "Real architects working in their environment. The kids left very excited."

The students were so excited, in fact, that Guelli heard one exclaim "That is exactly why I chose this shop" on the way home from the trip.

"I learned a lot too," said Guelli, who brought students to the businesses last year as well. "We try to emulate the real world [at Shawsheen Tech], but you can only go so far in the classroom. We visited two internationally known companies."

The architectural firm Sasaki Associates, with locations in San Francisco and in Watertown, started in Japan in 1953. The successful company has many projects known around the world including work at the most recent Summer Olympics in Beijing.

Hideo Sasaki helped revolutionize the study of landscape architecture by tying it to the larger issues of planning and by breaking down the traditional barriers between practice and teaching.

Continuum, located locally in West Newton and with other locations in Korea and Italy, is an industrial design firm that works with everybody products. The company helped produce the Reebok Pump sneaker and the cleaning product, the Swiffer.

"Engineers took the students around, gave them a tour and then answered questions," Guelli said. "At the end I think half [of the students] wanted to be architects and half of them wanted to be industrial designers. It was terrific."

Eighteen Shawsheen Tech sophomores greatly expanded their classroom experience by visiting two Massachusetts companies, where they saw firsthand how the Tech's curriculum was preparing them for real life. Courtesy photo

Tewksbury Library Notes

by Jen Hinderer

Come in and check out a movie on us!

You are checking the TV guide only to see that there is nothing good to watch, so you plan to run down to your local video store and rent a DVD. All you need to do is stop by the ATM and take out some money in order to pay for the DVD, and then remember to return it the next day or have to pay a late fee.

Well, we at Tewksbury Public Library have a better idea, and all you need is your library card. So, why not stop by the library, and check our extensive and constantly growing DVD collection?

"The library has DVDs?"
Well, of course we do! Your library card allows you to check out as many as six DVDs at a time, per library card...and it is all for FREE!

Our collection has current movies, like the Body of Lies, Changeling, and High School Musical 3, just to name a few. As well as classics that you might have seen over 100 times, but would love to watch again, like Oliver Twist, Wizard of Oz or Close Encounters of the Third Kind. We also have a growing non-fiction DVD collection that includes National Geographic titles as well as travel and exercise DVDs.

We have many TV shows on DVD, they include but are not limited to Ugly Betty, Friday Night Lights, and Mad Men. Oh, and if you want to borrow a DVD for your children don't forget our Children's DVD collection. Not only can you find the latest releases like Camp Rock, Nancy Drew and Hardy Boys TV shows, and Veggie Tales, but also standards like Disney Movies, Baby Einstein and Collou. We are sure that your child can find a DVD that they would love and enjoy.

When you check out a DVD from the Tewksbury Public Library you don't need to return it the next day, or even the day after that! You get to keep the DVD for a full seven days. We also encourage you to check the library catalog from home to see if a DVD that you are interested in is on the shelf. If not currently available you can request it, and when it comes in we can call or email you to let you know.

Do you have a suggestion of a DVD that you would like to see in our collection? Simply fill out our Suggestion for Purchase form online at www.tewksburypl.org and it may be considered for the collection. Or just mention it to a staff member at the desk and we will add it to our list to consider.

With all this to offer, our request is that you return our DVDs on time and that you take care of them while they are in your possession. DVDs are much more fragile than music CDs and scratch easily. Please be sure to place DVDs only in their cases and never on top of tables or other hard surfaces. Even fingerprints will cause a DVD not to play. If your DVD doesn't play, you can always gently clean it with a soft, damp cloth, wiping softly from the center hole outwards in a straight line, not in a circle. Children may not understand how to properly care for DVDs, so adults should be the primary handlers of this media. This will help us to maintain a large collection of DVDs that everyone can enjoy. Please be sure to mention to a staff member if a DVD is damaged or does not play even after cleaning so we can replace it if possible.

The best thing about borrowing DVDs from the library is that we have a great selection at no cost to you. Just remember to return your DVDs on time. We are constantly adding to the collection so be sure to check us out. We think that you will be impressed and surprised at what your local library has to offer.

We are so much more than books!

Reminder: Mind Bender program on March 21st

Saturday, March 21st at 2:00 p.m. Rory Raven - the mentalist & mindbender - will put on his show in the Library's meeting room. Rory Raven is a master mentalist with over a dozen years' experience performing for colleges, companies, and private events. Neither a psychic nor a magician, his knowledge of the inner workings of the mind allows him to perform amazing shows and fascinating lecture-demonstrations exploring the powers of the mind, both real and imagined.

This is an interactive stage mind-reading show. Minds will be read, spoons will be bent, and volunteers will test their own "powers." While the show is "TV clean," it's more suitable for adults than for children. Ages 10+. Seating is limited and registration is required. Call (978) 640-4490 ext.207 or register online at www.tewksburypl.org and click on our calendar.

Tewksbury teacher arraigned on attempted murder

Manzi claims self-defense

LAWRENCE - Edward Manzi, a sixth grade Social Studies teacher at the John F. Ryan School in Tewksbury, was arrested over the weekend after allegedly beating his live-in girlfriend, pistol whipping her mother, and pointing a loaded gun at her head and pulling the trigger. Manzi says he is innocent of the charges, and that he acted in self-defense.

Manzi, 47, of 125 Windkist Farm Road, North Andover, was arraigned in Lawrence District Court Tuesday morning before Justice Barbara Pierce on multiple charges including armed assault with intent to murder, two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, carrying a firearm without a license, intimidation of a witness, malicious destruction of property over $250, and larceny over $250. He is held without bail pending a dangerousness hearing scheduled for Monday, March 23, at Lawrence District Court.

Tewksbury School Superintendent Dr. Christine McGrath told the Crier that Manzi has been temporarily suspended without pay. No permanent action will be taken until legal proceedings are concluded.

"Mr. Manzi has been a fine employee," said McGrath. "He is well respected and has been an effective classroom practitioner."

Thomas Conlon, a sixth grade teacher in the Tewksbury school system until his retirement two years ago, will be returning to take over Manzi's classes for the remainder of the academic year.

According to prosecutors, the arrest stemmed from a domestic incident beginning at Ipswich River Park Saturday afternoon that led to violence at the home Manzi shares with his girlfriend, Catherine Lambert, and their 9-month-old daughter. Prosecutor Jessica Strasnick told the court that Manzi punched Lambert and then hit her in the head with a computer speaker and monitor, leaving blood on both.

According to prosecutors, Lambert fled from the apartment and sought out her mother, Patricia Lambert, owner of Windkist Equestrian Center. Patricia, with a gun in her possession, went back to Manzi's apartment. The apartment was locked and Patricia entered with her own key. She asked for the baby but Manzi refused and, according to court documents, punched her in the face, knocking her to the floor. Manzi then allegedly took Patricia's gun, a Walther PPK .38 caliber, from her pocket and struck her in the head with it several times. The gun fired, ejecting a round onto the floor, which was later recovered by police.

Patricia Lambert then told police that Manzi, "placed the gun to the left side of her head and pulled the trigger repeatedly," says the police report.

Strasnick told the court that Manzi then fled the home, with the gun and his girlfriend's cell phone.

North Andover police responded to the scene at 125 Windkist Farm Road at 3:45 p.m. Saturday, and after taking statements sent both the girlfriend and mother to the hospital to assess their wounds. Catherine Lambert later told police that she had a broken nose and a torn ear requiring seven stitches. Both Lamberts filed restraining orders in Lawrence District Court Monday.

Catherine Lambert told police that there was a history of abuse by Manzi, including one incident when she was seven weeks pregnant.

North Andover Police contacted Manzi on his own cell phone at 4:46 p.m. Saturday and asked him to turn himself in, which he refused. He told police he was "gathering his thoughts" and referred questions to his attorney. Police asked him repeatedly to tell them what he did with the weapon. Based on his responses, the gun was found ten feet into the woods near a North Andover home, with four rounds in the magazine, one round in the chamber, and the hammer pulled back. However, Manzi told police the magazine was not in the weapon and that there was no round in the chamber.

Using Verizon cell phone towers, police tracked Manzi to Salem, NH, where he has a friend. Salem police arrested Manzi Sunday as a fugitive from justice without incident and he appeared in court Monday in New Hampshire.

Manzi's attorney, Anthony Rozzi, appeared in court with Manzi Tuesday morning asking for a $5,000-$8,000 bond. Rozzi told the court that Manzi has a long history in the North Shore and is not a flight risk. He is going through a divorce from his wife in Peabody with whom he has two children, ages 20 and 15. Rozzi told the court that Manzi has taught in Tewksbury for eight years and, before that, was a Lowell Sun reporter for three years.

Rozzi said Manzi was acting in self-defense, that Catherine Lambert was drinking heavily that day, in violation of her own probation, when she returned to the apartment in the afternoon. According to Manzi, she threw a ceramic mask at him and fell over a computer table when he tried to restrain her. He said Lambert has a history of being violent when intoxicated. Further, he stated that Lambert's mother entered the apartment with a loaded gun threatening to shoot Manzi, which he deflected, causing it to go off.

Police reports do not mention alcohol, nor does it mention any impairment.

Because there is a child in the home, police alerted the Department of Social Services about the situation.

Following the hearing, Rozzi told reporters that Manzi denies holding the gun to Patricia Lambert's head and that the teacher is, "shaken and upset" by these events. Rozzi said he was filling in for Manzi's attorney, Neil Hourihan, who will appear at the dangerousness hearing Monday.

Manzi seriously injured himself last year when he flipped his car after traveling at a high rate of speed on Interstate 495 South on his way to work. State Police later charged him with reckless driving.

injuries on the well-intentioned post office safe, blowing off the door thereof by means of some explosive device, supposed to have been dynamite.

W.W. Carter, the urbane and popular postmaster and station agent heard the detonation and immediately made good use of the telephone, thereby summoning enough neighbors to constitute a posse, at the head of which he made all haste to reach the scene of the goings-on, which he at first believed to be the grocery store of Buck Brothers. To his great astonishment, he found that it was the station which had been torpedoes, something over $200 having been abstracted, the marauders having withdrawn under cover of the night and other things.

The local police authorities displayed their customary zeal and efficiency and obtained a number of valuable clues. At the present writing, they still have the clues. So far as is known, the burglars still have the $200.

As is usual on such occasions, various theories have been advanced by different persons as to how the robbers came and went, and some individuals claim to possess evidence that they profess to believe is significant. According to these various accounts, the burglars departed by means of a team which they had awaiting them at Blanchard's crossing, they drove to Reading and tried to enter the railroad station there but were frightened off and went away in an automobile that was waiting for them there; one of the crossing tender's houses was entered and looted of an alarm clock; and as a house was reported entered in the south part of town at about the same time, the multiplicity of reports leads only to confusion.

The authorities, however, may call upon certain residents of the town to explain where they were and what they were doing a short time before and shortly after the break. If they can give a satisfactory account of themselves, further search may be made for the culprits.

W.W. Carter was the station agent and postmaster. He lived diagonally across the street, about 50 yards from the depot. His house is now the VFW Post.

Carter's family founded the store in North Wilmington that is now the site of Elia's.

Blanchard's crossing was the next crossing north on the railroad line, at Salem Street.

The newspaper was printed by Fred Lowell, who lived at 16 Federal St. The paper was saved by Rodney Buck, who ran Buck Bros. store for more than a half century. It was reprinted in the Wilmington Crusader in Dec. 1953.

The North Wilmington depot and Buck Bros. store both burned in 1911 and were replaced in 1912. That store is still standing, and is now the Sports Authority. The depot was damaged by fire in 1988 and was torn down in 1991.

The old North Wilmington depot, which burned in 1911, was robbed exactly 100 years ago.

for the Shawshen School.

Article 11 will replace the asbestos vinyl tiles at the Woburn Street School with vinyl composite floor tiles for $235,000. The existing tiles are cracked and lifting and the expense is associated with the proper abatement of the asbestos.

Article 12 would borrow $700,000 for new thermal panel translucent windows for the Shawshen School. The current windows leak heat and water.

Article 13 brought considerable conversation around the topic of demolishing the decrepit and crumbling Swain School. The building, which is currently surrounded by temporary fencing due to bricks occasionally falling from its facade, is listed as surplus by the School department. The historic commission wants to preserve, at the least, a frieze from 1914 inside the building. Former Historic Commission member Frank West, however, would rather see the building become a town hall "we could be proud of." He was involved with the rehabilitation of the old West School on Shawshen Avenue and proposes using a similar model - utilizing state aid and the expertise of Shawshen Tech. He also proposed a multi-purpose use, after repairing the structure and abating the asbestos on the property, that would offer revolving displays, permanent space for local scouting troops, and upgraded public bathrooms to improve sanitary conditions for Fourth of July celebrations.

Article 17 seeks $15,360 for the Senior Citizen Tax Work-Off program, which places 24 qualified seniors in positions in town and school departments to work up to 80 hours and earn up to $640 to apply to their property taxes.

Article 24 will allow the town to withdrawn 600,000 gallons per day from the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority as a member town, solving the town's seven-year water problems. Financing the membership through the MWRA will cost the town $2.8 million paid through rates over twenty years.

Article 27, referring to the public consumption of marijuana, is based on language from the Attorney General's office and is designed to address some loopholes within the new law passed in the Commonwealth in November, decriminalizing marijuana use. This article gives the town the authority to enforce the law, preventing people from using the drug in public places and charging a $300 fine for violations.

Shawsheen Tech falls to Shrewsbury at the Garden

Unbeaten streak comes to an end

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

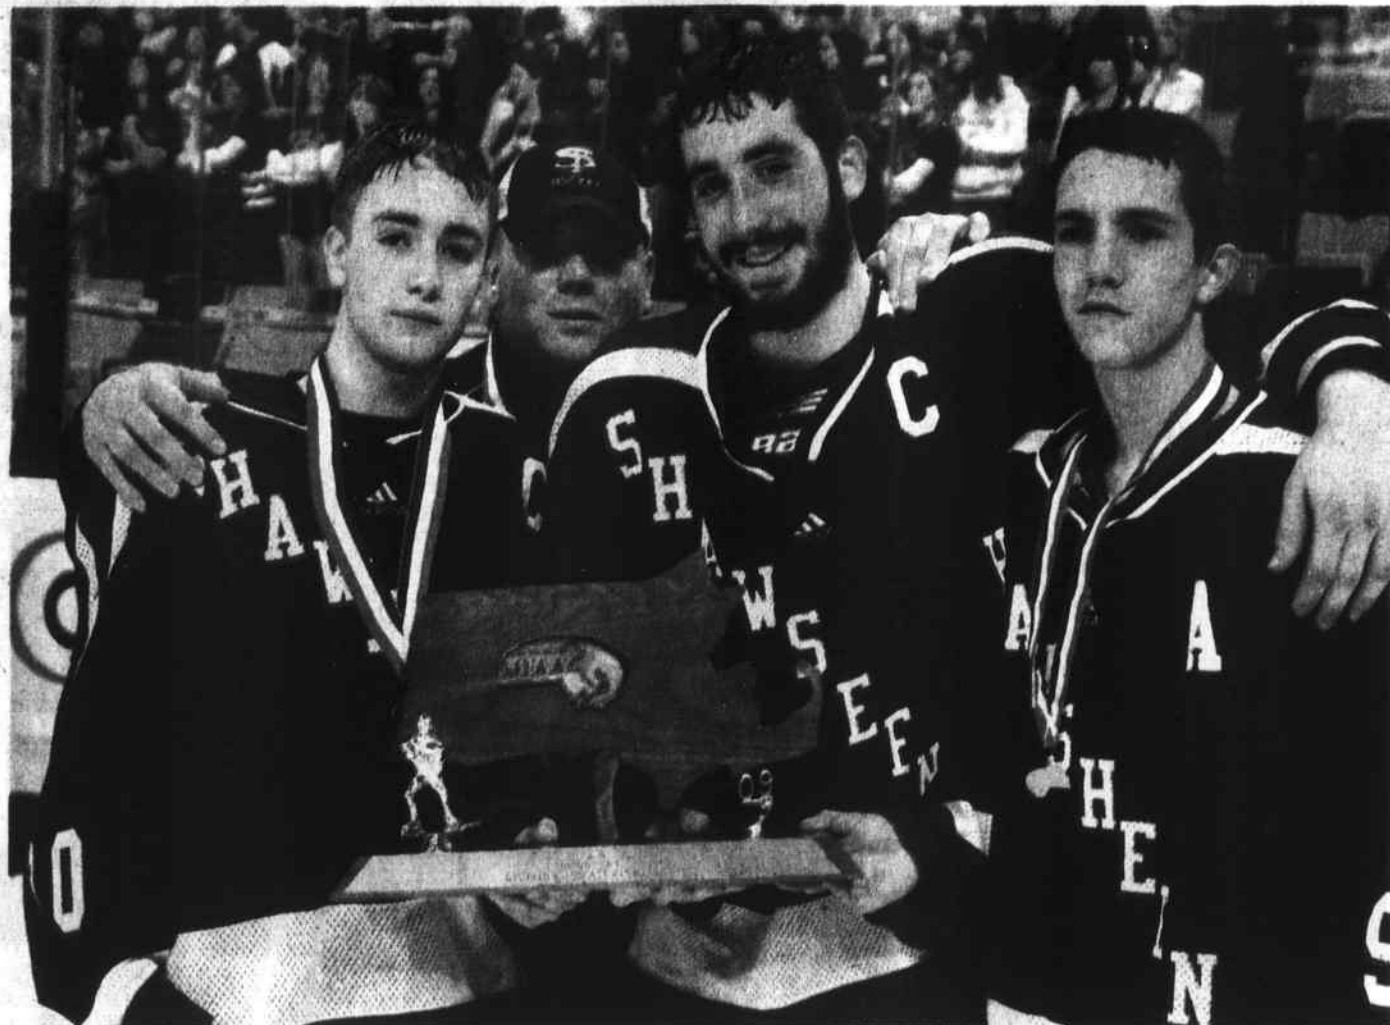

BOSTON — The Shawsheen Tech hockey team had been on such an impressive late season run that the players and coaches probably forgot what it was like to lose a game. Unfortunately for the Rams they were reminded of just how painful a loss can be in the most bitter way possible on Sunday afternoon at the TD BankNorth Garden, falling to Shrewsbury by a score of 3-2 in the Division 3 state championship game.

The loss ended a remarkable 13 game unbeaten streak for the Rams, which included a State Vocational championship as well as five state tournament victories on their incredible march to the Garden. But all the great memories of the season could not make up for the hurt in the eyes of the Shawsheen players as they filed to the locker room in the aftermath of their loss. Someday they will look back with great pride on their tremendous accomplishments, perhaps even within a couple of days, but on Sunday there was only pain.

Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker, who in his third year at the helm of the Rams took them to their first state championship game since 1983, felt his players' pain as he spoke outside the quiet Rams locker room after addressing his team.

"I told the kids they can have their time to themselves. It hurts especially for the seniors," Baker said. "But as I told them, if it did not bother them then they are not true competitors. It's difficult for them right now."

The Rams, who finished their tremendous season with a record of 17-6-3, were led by a pair of goals by senior Ryan Arensbach, and held a 1-0 lead at the end of the first period, but Shrewsbury was controlling play and in the second period the Colonials took the lead with two goals in just nine seconds before extending their lead to 3-1 in the third period before the Rams fought back to within a goal with just over three minutes left. Shawsheen had their chances, but were unable to get the equalizer in the final minutes.

Overall the Colonials out shot the Rams 27-14, including a 23-7 edge after two periods.

"I don't think we played our best game through two periods actually," said Rams' coach Chuck Baker. "We kind of had the deer in the headlights look for two periods. The one thing I'm always going to get with these guys is a great effort. But like I just told them in the locker room, I think they played scared. Some of them gave me that look that says 'coach I wasn't scared', but they don't understand that scared can be a little too tight on their stick, overplaying a guy or underestimating a guy, and the kids were just not thinking the way I know they had thought to get us to this point."

Arensbach put the Rams in front at the 13:25 mark of the first period, taking a great set up from senior Matt Grace to break in alone on Shrewsbury goalie Pat Coates and beat the junior goalie low to the stick side to give the Rams a 1-0 lead at the end of one despite being shorthanded four times (including a 5-on-3) and being out shot 10-4 in the frame. Freshman Joe Sodergren of Tewksbury also assisted on the goal.

The Rams maintained their 1-0 lead for much of the second period, although Shrewsbury had clearly taken control of the game. Finally the Colonials persistence paid off, and paid off in a big way with two goals in a nine second span late in period.

First, on a delayed penalty sophomore Curtis Beals finally beat senior goalie Evan Walsh, putting home a rebound after a scramble in front of the Shawsheen net with 5:54 left in the period. And with the Rams still reeling slightly from seeing the score tied, the Colonials pounced immediately, winning the ensuing face off at center ice and taking the lead on great set up in front of the net from Beals to junior Kevin Dufault who buried the puck top shelf for a 2-1 lead with 5:45 left in the period.

Shawsheen came out in the third period with a renewed vigor that was evident from the start, and when they got just their second power play of the game early in the period, it looked like a great opportunity to tie the score. But much like the case while the teams were at even strength the Rams had a tough generating any offense and then Shrewsbury scored a back breaker, with a short handed goal by senior Castan Sommers at the 3:48 mark of the period to make the score 3-1.

Sommers, in a trend that the Rams saw over and over again during the game, beat all Shawsheen players to the loose puck before racing up the right side and beating Walsh on shot that just barely eluded the senior net minder's glove.

"We had guys playing longer shifts than usual and I think that wore us down," Baker said. "They were quicker than us to the puck, and I tip my cap to Shrewsbury, they are a very good hockey team," said Baker.

The Rams did not quit, however, and they continued their strong third period play. Finally they were rewarded for their efforts with 3:02 left in the game when Arensbach notched his second goal of the game on an assist from Brett Fredrickson.

Fredrickson was sent in alone but a great pokecheck play by Shrewsbury's Kevin Charbonneau forced the puck into the right hand corner. Not to be denied, Fredrickson got to the puck, and sent it back to the low slot area to Arensbach, who got a low wrist shot past Coates (12 saves), to make it 3-2 and give the Rams and their fans some life.

Baker was pleased to see his team play so well in the third period, he just wished they could have been at their best for the entire game.

The Baker Family remains strong

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

CAMBRIDGE — Last Thursday night, you could have tied Chuck Baker down, poured gasoline all over him and stuffed him in a corner, and still he would have this huge smile on his face, and this certain glow to him. That glow became obvious when Baker spoke about where his life was in March 2008 to where it is today a year later.

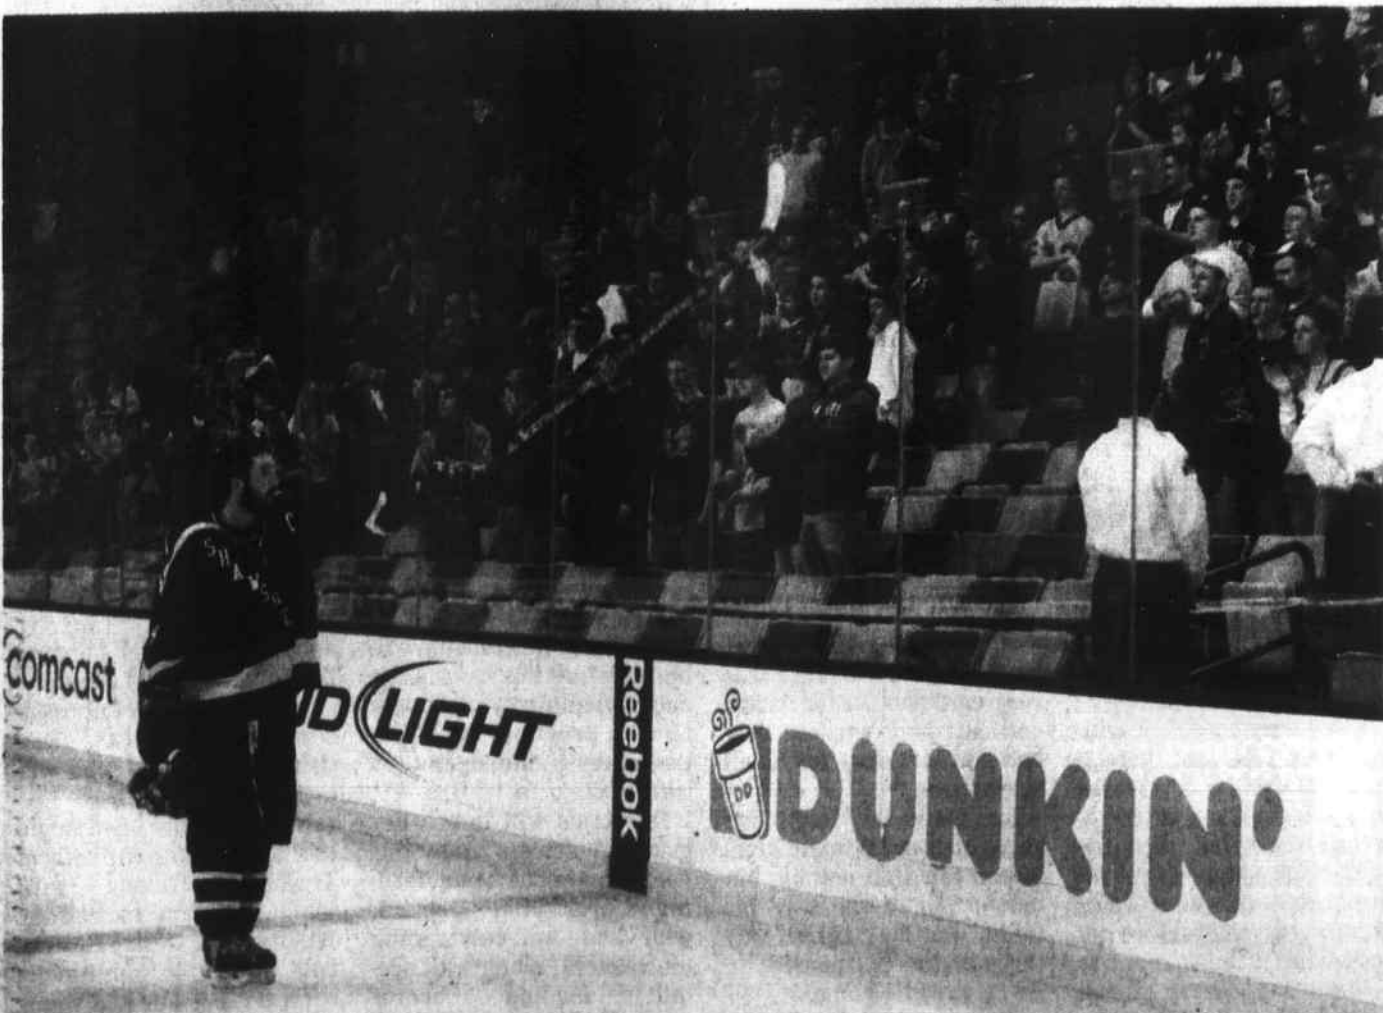

"Last year I was dealing with all kinds of personal stuff, and now everything is great," said the head coach moments after his Shawsheen Tech Boys' Hockey team defeated Norwell, 4-3, in overtime in the Division 3 state semifinal game played at Harvard University.

The personal stuff, was certainly a tremendous ordeal Baker had to sort through. His wife, Maria, was sick - and no one knew what was wrong with her.

"We don't even know. They thought it was some blood cell ordeal but they could never pinpoint exactly what it was. Right now everything is good and tonight (the win) makes it even better," he said with a big laugh.

Now 12 months later - with a Division 3 North sectional title in hand, a state semifinal win, and a trip to the TD BankNorth Garden which came three days later in which the Rams were defeated by Shrewsbury, 3-2 - the Baker Family has gotten over this terrible ordeal.

"Now everything is going great," he said. "Everything is perfect, healthwise everything is great. It's just totally different from last season to this season. It's great now. My wife is doing so great right now - we left Dana Farber and she's running the (Boston) Marathon (on Dana Baker PG SP3C

Rams fall in Division 3 State Final

"I think like anyone else at that age of coming in here (Banknorth Garden) and having that awe factor," Baker said. "It took us two periods, and I thought we played well in the third period, and well enough to come back. But at that point, you're playing against the clock."

Shawsheen certainly had their opportunities in the final few minutes as they had sustained pressure in the Shrewsbury end, including a chance with a pass across the front of the crease that just bounced over a Rams players stick with about a minute to go, but they were unable to get the tying goal.

One other thing the Rams were unable to do was get Walsh out of the net for the extra attacker in the final minute. Baker called time-out with 1:25 left and had planned to pull Walsh with about 50 seconds left, but Shrewsbury managed to get the puck out of their zone at about that time and the Rams were unable to regain control and allow Baker to get Walsh to the bench.

"I was very confident with the group I had out there 5-on-5," Baker said. "I was trying to get Evan at the 52-second mark but then the puck was shipped out of their zone and went down towards our end and we got bottled in. I didn't want to make it a 4-2 game at that point. I just had a lot of confidence with our kids, especially after getting that second goal. I thought that goal was a big momentum shift for us. And like I said I was very confident in the kids I had out there because they had gotten it done for us all season long."

And while the Rams fell short of their ultimate goal, Baker could do nothing but take pride in the way his team battled their way through the tournament to get to the title game.

"The two best Division 3 teams played today" Baker said. "I kept hearing, 'Oh Shawsheen will be out this week' and 'Shawsheen will be out' but this is a huge accomplishment, not only for the program, but from the school's standpoint as well."

The Rams will lose a key group of seniors from this year's team, as team leading scorer Mike DeRosa, who had an outstanding tournament, along with second leading scorer Arensbach, Grace, goalie Evan Walsh, Corey Stearns, Zachary Oles, Wilmington's Kyle Gaffney, Corey Leger and Tewksbury's Shawn Donovan will all graduate.

But a return to greatness is certainly not out of the question for the Rams who will bring back freshmen forwards Michael DiGiorgio and Joe Sodergren, both of Tewksbury, along with junior defensemen Cody Wilkins and Jesse Rosetti, both of Wilmington, among several other talented young players.

Long but fun ride to the finals

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports correspondent

BOSTON — The Shawsheen Tech hockey team saw their remarkable season come to a heart breaking end on Sunday afternoon at TD Banknorth Garden with a 3-2 loss to Shrewsbury in the Division 3 state championship game, but that tough end to the season could hardly diminish what the team accomplished on their march to the title game, and the opponents they had to beat to get to the championship game.

Unlike some teams in higher divisions that due to first round byes could play as little as three games before advancing to the title game, the Rams, with no first round bye despite a No. 3 seed in the North Sectional, along with playing the North-South title game that is unique to Division 3 due to Central and Western Mass. programs, had to win five games in order to advance to the championship game.

And for the Rams, these were no ordinary five games they had to win. With the exception of an opening round 10-2 win over a rather weak 14th seeded East Boston team, the Rams faced the iron of Division 3 on their way to the Garden, including the defending sectional champs and sectional finalists. There was no 12 seed that got lucky in the first round and the Rams had the good fortune of playing later in the tournament. To quote the old television commercial, the Rams got to the title game the old fashioned way. They earned it.

After East Boston, the Rams took on sixth seeded Lowell, whom they had never beaten in tournament play, and picked up a 3-1 win despite allowing a goal just 15 seconds into the game, and being short-handed for large portions of the game, including two full 5-on-3 disadvantages.

Moving on to the semi-finals the Rams went to a shootout and eliminated seventh seeded Marblehead, last year's sectional champ who had ousted second seeded Swampscott in the quarter finals by a score of 2-1, and in the North finals the Rams pulled off what had to be one of the biggest upsets of the entire tournament when they ousted heavily favored top seed Concord-Carlisle by a score of 3-1 in a game they dominated after allowing a goal just 28 seconds into the game.

It was the first loss of the season for Concord-Carlisle to a Division 3 school, as their previous two losses had come against Division 2 opponents.

Finally, in the North-South championship game the Rams knocked off South sectional champ Norwell at Harvard's Bright Hockey Center by a score of 4-3 in overtime. Any way you slice it the Rams had the toughest road possible on their way to the title game and they met each challenge successfully right up until the final whistle against Shrewsbury on Sunday.

Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker knew what his team had to overcome in order to advance to the championship game and he was very proud of the way his team responded to the role of being the underdog despite their high seed.

"We battled through the season and we were always the underdog," said Baker. "I kept hearing, 'Oh Shawsheen will be out this week' and 'Shawsheen will be out' but this is a huge accomplishment, not only for the program, but from the school's standpoint as well."

Shawsheen may have been overlooked by many of the experts due to compiling their strong regular season record (12-5-3) against a relatively weak Commonwealth Athletic Conference schedule. But Baker had smartly scheduled a strong non-league schedule throughout the season and while the Rams did not win all of those games, particularly earlier in the season, it prepared them for what they would face come tournament time and the Rams did not back down from anybody.

Baker said his players were able to use their underdog status in preparation for the tournament and continued to use it as the tournament wore on. And his team's success even drew rave review from opposing coaches.

"That has always been motivation for them," Baker said. "From Lowell on they were determined to get to the Garden and we just kept telling them you have to win the next one."

"To beat Lowell, and then Marblehead was a great accomplishment, even though some people might have called it controversial because of the shootout, those are the rules the MIAA has in place and we will take the win. And then to come back and beat the number one seed in Concord-Carlisle was another great win. I got a lot of calls after that one and I also got a call from coach Harrington at Concord-Carlisle before the Norwell game to wish us luck. To get that from a guy you just beat says a lot about him. That is a classy program."

It may have taken the rest of Division 3 a while to notice, but they now know Shawsheen is a very classy program in its own right. And a very talented one as well.

Overtime goal helps Rams prevail in semi-final

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

CAMBRIDGE — In its first appearance in the state semi-final game since 1993, the Shawsheen Tech Boys' Hockey team edged out a very tough Norwell squad, 4-3, scoring a goal inside the second minute of play during the overtime period, which was the difference of the Rams coming away with the win last Thursday and advancing to Sunday's state championship final where the team was defeated by Shrewsbury, 3-2.

No one really knew who got the game winner, but no one really cared. Matt Grace officially was given the goal on the scoresheet but that was after guesses by the Rams' coaches, players and the game officials.

With the game tied at 3-3 after regulation, the teams then went to an eight-minute sudden-death overtime period. Shawsheen took advantage of its offensive chance, putting in a loose puck at the 1:46 mark of overtime lifting the team to victory.

"(The puck) kept bouncing like a golf ball and I just kept whacking at it," said Arensbach, a Billerica resident. "It went off (Norwell goalie Clay Ferguson's) pad and went in. We had a bunch of guys fighting for it. I don't know if I got it, or if Grace or (Brett) Fredrickson got it. It was exciting, but it doesn't matter who got it. I couldn't tell you who got it and I couldn't even hear who they said got it because it was so loud. None of us care who got it because we're going to the (TD BankNorth) Garden."

And the reason why the team advanced to the state final according to head coach Chuck Baker, was having unselfish players like Arensbach and Grace all season long.

"We were trying to tell the kids all game to shoot low," said Baker. "We felt like we were playing catch with (Ferguson) all night. (Ferguson) is a big kid and we wanted to make him work for every save he got. We wanted to throw it down at his feet. Arensbach had the puck, and he was getting hooked and held down and next thing you know we threw it five-hole. No one on that line right now — Fredrickson, Grace or Arensbach — claims they scored the goal. Arensbach said he threw it there, but none of them want credit, so I'm giving the credit to all three of them."

From start to finish, the intensity of this game was at its highest peak and the loud cheers from the few thousand people who packed Harvard University's Arena never stopped. Their were so many crushing body hits, plenty of offensive chances to get the oohs-and-ahhs going, and both goalies, Ferguson and Evan Walsh were up to every challenge possible.

Throughout it all, Baker for one, tried to remain as calm as possible.

"I tell you this has been a battle," he said. "I try to stay as calm as possible especially with the way these kids' emotions go up and down. The kids knew we were coming in with five fan buses so they were riding pretty high. If I don't stay calm, I guess I'm going to lose track of the troops. It was a battle out there. It was unbelievable."

"This was a great game. It was up-and-down and the refs let both teams play and it's the way you want a game to be played. You don't want to see a loser in this type of game, but I tell you right now I'm glad that it's Shawsheen who is going to the state championship game."

Shawsheen took the early lead scoring at the two minute mark of the first period. Corey Leger kept the puck in the Norwell zone at the right point. He took a quick wrist shot that got deflected in the low slot area. The puck bounced out to Cody Wilkins, who put a quick shot on that was kicked out by Ferguson's right leg, onto the stick of Kyle Leblanc, who buried a backhand into the back of the net.

Norwell scored the game's next two goals and led 2-1 until Shawsheen tied the game back up in the final minute of the first period. Michael Derosa gathered a loose puck and had Ferguson dead to right in tight but his backhand went off the side post. The puck was then gathered behind the net by Arensbach and Joseph Sodergren, who eventually found Derosa open at the left circle and he blasted a one-timer to the far post with 23 seconds left.

Again Norwell took the lead scoring with 3:51 left in the second period, before DeRosa tied the game up again on an incredible individual effort. Sodergren hit Derosa with a long pass going through neutral ice. Derosa crept inside the Norwell blue line, beat a defenseman around the left side, and was able to get a quick shot off which went under Ferguson's right pad before Derosa's momentum flung him into the net and the goal counted.

"He does that at times," responded Baker about Derosa's ability to get a goal when he wants. "He can be a force out there. It's just a matter with him of turning it on at the right time. (And tonight) he did - he took it that he had to beat that defenseman, put his head down, and (eventually) get the goal."

That terrific individual effort helped put the game into overtime where Arensbach, Grace or the National Anthem singer put the biscuit home, allowing Shawsheen to live another day.

"I knew we had talent," said Baker. "We have a large senior class and a very talented senior class. It was just more of a fact of the kids believing in themselves. Since our last loss on January 22nd, this team has really jelled together. They hang out together, and I hear nothing back amongst the group and being in the building sometimes I hear a bunch of stuff. It's just a great bunch of kids."

"These kids told me after (our first playoff win against) East Boston that we would be going to the Garden," said Baker. "I questioned it, obviously as a coach because I knew we were going to have to work really hard to do that. But I tell you right now, they proved me wrong."

The Baker Family remains strong

Farber's behalf), so I couldn't possibly be any happier."

Chuck Baker was an assistant coach under legendary coach Bill Gordon, who retired after the 05-'06 season. Gordon was the only coach who led the program to a Division 3 state title in 1984, and led the team to the state semi-final game in 1993. Gordon's last game was a defeat in the sectional semi-finals to Savio Prep. Baker, who is also the head boys lacrosse coach and an assistant football coach, took over before the 2006-'07 season. During that pre-season, he was asked about the adjustment his players were making to the new coach.

"It's been hectic," Baker said at the time. "We are putting in a completely new system for these guys and they like it and they are starting to accept it. If we get to the point where they have fully accepted it I think we can cause some trouble in Division 3."

Baker was right - his teams would make noise in Division 3 play. His teams have had success in the first two years reaching the state tournament, before making that extra leap this season. The Rams went 7-0-1 in its last eight regular season games, and then kept that winning ride going in the playoffs. Shawsheen knocked off East Boston, Lowell, Marblehead, Concord-Carlisle and Norwell, before losing to Shrewsbury on Sunday at the BankNorth Garden.

"I'm just so proud of these kids," said Baker after Thursday's win. "They have hung around in games where they had too. They grit and bear it, and they have to deal with me. They might say that I repeat myself over and over again, but you got to. I'm a teacher as well (at Shawsheen Tech) and you just have to keep going over things in order to get them to do what you want them to do. Right now they are doing it and it's not me anymore. At this point of the season, I can only keep them on the right track but they are the ones who have to get out there and perform."

That win, the dramatic overtime thrilling victory over Norwell, says Baker, is something he will forever cherish, and never lose sight on.

"Without a doubt (it's my greatest accomplishment as a head coach)," said Baker. "It's my greatest accomplishment in general. Besides having my son, this is the greatest accomplishment of my life. This is just my third year as head coach and I never thought (getting to the state final) would come this early. It really hasn't set in yet that we are going to the Garden, but this is a dream come true."

That dream almost came entirely true on Sunday in the state championship game. Shawsheen was knocked off by just a goal - as the Rams just couldn't generate enough offense against Shrewsbury.

"Even though we lost, I look at this as a win-win situation for the program and the school," said Baker after Sunday's game. "I can't thank all of the people who came out to watch us over these games. All of these fans who traveled to see us, and who paid the ticket prices, I can't thank them enough. Our fan base has gone to a new level. Our kids played for that, and I think this has been just such a great thing for not only our program, but for the school as well."

"I never thought we would be playing here but this group of kids are a very determined group, and they were that way from the get-go," continued Baker. "All in all, this has been a great accomplishment - win or lose, it's just been such a great feeling."

And certainly, the CAC Title, State Voc Championship, the Division 3 North Sectional Championship, and the Division 3 state finalist trophy are all small pieces of hardware in the life of sports compared to the large piece of hardware, health, that the Baker Family can enjoy together.

"She's great," he said of his wife. "We've been told we can have more kids, and now we'll get my son Brodie a brother or sister. So that's just awesome."

Town Crier intern Becca Quigley and correspondent Lou Cimaglia debate the recent Patriots trade of Matt Cassel and Mike Vrabel to the Kansas City Chiefs.

CIMAGLIA: So Becca, the football world is buzzing with the Patriots' off-season moves. Namely, dumping Matt Cassel and Mike Vrabel to the Kansas City Chiefs for a second round draft pick. A lot of people are upset with this move, and I am not one of them. Dumping Cassel actually makes a lot of sense. Now, the Pats have a great deal of cap room and are free to maneuver and pick up veteran free agents like Fred Taylor and Joey Galloway. This is what the Pats do better than anyone else, and that is acquiring draft picks and plundering the free agent market for guys who can fit into the system of Bill Belichick. Expect another deep playoff run from the Pats this season.

QUIGLEY: Well, Louis, I would have to agree with a lot of people that the Patriots' move wasn't such a good idea. After this past season, Cassel has gained a lot of experience and has the team's offense down. Also, the Pats shouldn't rely too heavily on the return of Tom Brady. Though he is expected to come back, the chances are slim that Brady will be able to bounce back in his prime after such a great injury, and the fact that he is now married and has a child could potentially take some of his focus away from his career.

As for Mike Vrabel, few players can match his versatility and reliability. He was able to play both offense and defense, and he represented the organization well with his positive attitude and overall good character. Because they would already have high salaries prior to joining the team, veteran free agents would be costly for the Patriots and wouldn't "fit into the system" all that quickly and easily. As they say, "you can't teach old dogs new tricks."

CIMAGLIA: Firstly, you can call me Lou. Secondly, I am totally on the other side of the fence from you. Sure Cassel has gained a lot of experience. And he earned himself quite a bit of money. As for Brady, the Patriots don't need him to return to his prime. His prime was a freakish 50 touchdown passes, even if he was completely healthy and the injury never happened you don't bank on that.

As for marriage, check out Tiger Woods. He's done alright since he got married and people said he might falter. I do hate to see Vrabel go, but at the same time, it is a league of youth. Vrabel is getting old and he has done everything he can do in a Patriots uniform. And of course free agents can be costly, but the point of free agency is to improve the team while inevitably spending money. And that fiscal freedom is something Patriots fans may take for granted.

As far as veterans not fitting into the system, I give you a list: Randy Moss, Wes Welker, Rodney Harrison, Corey Dillon, Adalius Thomas, Rosie Colvin, Junior Seau, Stephen Neal, Joe Andruzzi, David Patton, Larry Izzo, Christian Fauria, Jabbar Gaffney, Sammy Morris, Vrabel ... well, you get the picture.

QUIGLEY: Yeah, some players in the past have been beneficial additions to the team, but this can't be ensured with every player added to the roster. One of the best qualities that both Vrabel and Cassel displayed was consistency. And the fans loved them. Even if Brady does come back alright, if he is not as good as he was before the injury, the fans will be disappointed and will think of the trade as a mistake on Belichick's part. Especially with a torn ACL and MCL, Brady is at risk for becoming injured again. And just because Tiger Woods could remain focused on his career means nothing; everyone has different priorities.

With Cassel being only 26 years old, there's certainly room for him to improve immensely as a quarterback. He already has some impressive stats under his belt (completing 63.4 percent of his passes and throwing for 3,963 yards and 21 touchdowns), and these can only become more impressive as he continues playing. Basically, the entire trade is very short-minded: just because Cassel is not completely up to par yet with Brady (although getting there), the Patriots have lost their chances of having a star quarterback in the future, and even though Vrabel is "getting old," he has yet to let the team down and has proved to be one of the more coachable and contributing members of the NFL, as well as extremely popular with the fans.

CIMAGLIA: I don't think the fans will look at the trade as a mistake if Brady doesn't perform as well as he once did. What would you suggest Belichick to have done otherwise? Trade Brady? The man has a monstrous contract and he's paid to play football. And Cassel only needed one good year for him to go get a starting job elsewhere. If the Pats kept both guys, Brady would have to start, and Cassel would gripe about being on the bench and ask for a trade anyway. Something had to give. And Brady is only 31, he still has at least five really good years left in the tank.

Trust me, the fans of New England will not turn on Tom Brady or Bill Belichick. Losing Vrabel hurts, it does. But how much longer could he have continued to do what he was doing? He was playing a hybrid defensive end/outside linebacker position, an extremely athletic spot. Take my word for it Becca, the 2009 Patriots will be better than the ones of 2008.

QUIGLEY: OK, listen up here Louis. There's no doubt that Brady should be the starting quarterback, but what if he cannot physically step up to the challenge after a season of not being able to play? Of course he is an exceptional player, but he has not fully tested his knee against NFL competitors. He may feel healthy now, but who knows how he will feel when he first gets sacked. Then who will Belichick turn to? It definitely would not have hurt to have Cassel around for another season.

My main point is that the Pats merely got a second round draft pick in return for trading Cassel and Vrabel; both are worth much more than that. Cassel would have been there to relieve the pressure on Brady upon returning, giving the team security, and increasing his worth for a future trade. Vrabel's position is athletic, but he hasn't shown any decline in his ability to fulfill the position, so it makes sense to keep him for another season. Timing is everything, and I think that Belichick jumped the gun in making this move.

Ferriero named NE-10 Player of the Week

Dina Ferriero has started her senior campaign as a member of the Bentley softball team with a bang, as she was named the Northeast-10 Player of the Week.

The first baseman, a converted outfielder, helped Bentley to 2-1 start with six hits in 11 at bats (.545), three runs scored, three RBI and a double. For the season, Ferriero is batting .407 with 11 hits and six runs.

Tewksbury's Pat Devlin is tearing it up on the diamond for the UMass Lowell baseball team. The freshman third baseman is hitting .545 with six hits and four RBI through three games, all of which he started. Fellow Redmen alumni Pat Morrissey and Matt Monico are also on the team.

Brendan Stokes had another two hits for Northeastern as they took down the New Jersey Institute of Technology in a marathon 14-inning game on Sunday. Stokes, a junior from Tewksbury, has started 12 out of 13 games this season, batting .273 with a homer and seven RBI.

Peter Fortunato finished off his indoor track career at UMass by competing in the IC4A Championships last Saturday in Boston. The senior from Tewksbury ran the mile, finishing in 31st place with a time of 4:22.20.

A congratulations is in store for Wilmington's Mike McMahon, who helped lead the Babson hockey team to a thrilling 4-3 overtime win against UMass Boston to win the ECAC East Men's Ice Hockey Tournament Championship last Saturday. It was Babson's fourth conference championship and was especially impressive given that the Beavers were a seven seed in the tournament.

Tewksbury's Jenn Foley is seeing her fair share of playing time as a freshman on the Plymouth State lacrosse team. She has started in both her team's games this season at the attacking position.

Junior Varsity Hoop teams complete successful seasons

By LOU CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High School Boys' Basketball program just keeps on trucking. As the varsity advances through the postseason, and the freshmen recently completed a perfect season, the JV team also had a fantastic season this winter. They posted an impressive 15-3 campaign, highlighted by a twelve game winning streak. "We started off slow," said coach Tom Woods. "We lost to Masco the first game of the season, 55-39. Then we ran off twelve wins in a row, averaging about 65 points a game."

In that winning streak, the Wildcats notched some big wins. They beat a good Ipswich club, 65-44. They embarrassed a very solid North Reading team, considered one of the better teams in the league, 54-38. They hung some notable totals against Triton, Lynnfield, Rockport and Georgetown, scoring 74, 71, 66 and 70, respectively. Wilmington also trounced Tewksbury, in Tewksbury, 71-48.

Coach Woods had some words of high praise for every member of the team:

Chris Frissore: "He had 226 points this season. He's only a sophomore, and he's going to be real good."

Pat Enwright: "Really kept the team together. He had 108 points and did the job as point guard."

Viny Scifo: "Had 164 points in (just) 12 games (before being moved to the varsity)."

Jimmy Stokes: "Is another good player. He had 118 points."

Sean Hanley: "He played three positions for me, the two, three and the four. He was a role player and he really helped the team."

Derek O'Dea and Jesse Bozzella: "Were the big men on the team. O'Dea played the last three games of the season on varsity. Bozzella came down from varsity. He wasn't getting a lot of time and (Coach Jim McCune) sent him to play for us."

Chris DiCecca: "Was a good defensive player for us."

Nick Godzyk: "Had over 60 points in seven games but he got hurt. He turned his ankle and missed most of the rest season. He came back for the last couple games, and scored eight in the last game of the year against Winthrop."

Mike Aria: "Played three spots for me as well. He had 46 points, and was a good support player."

Mike Micalizzi: "Was a great defender. He always covered the best player on the other team."

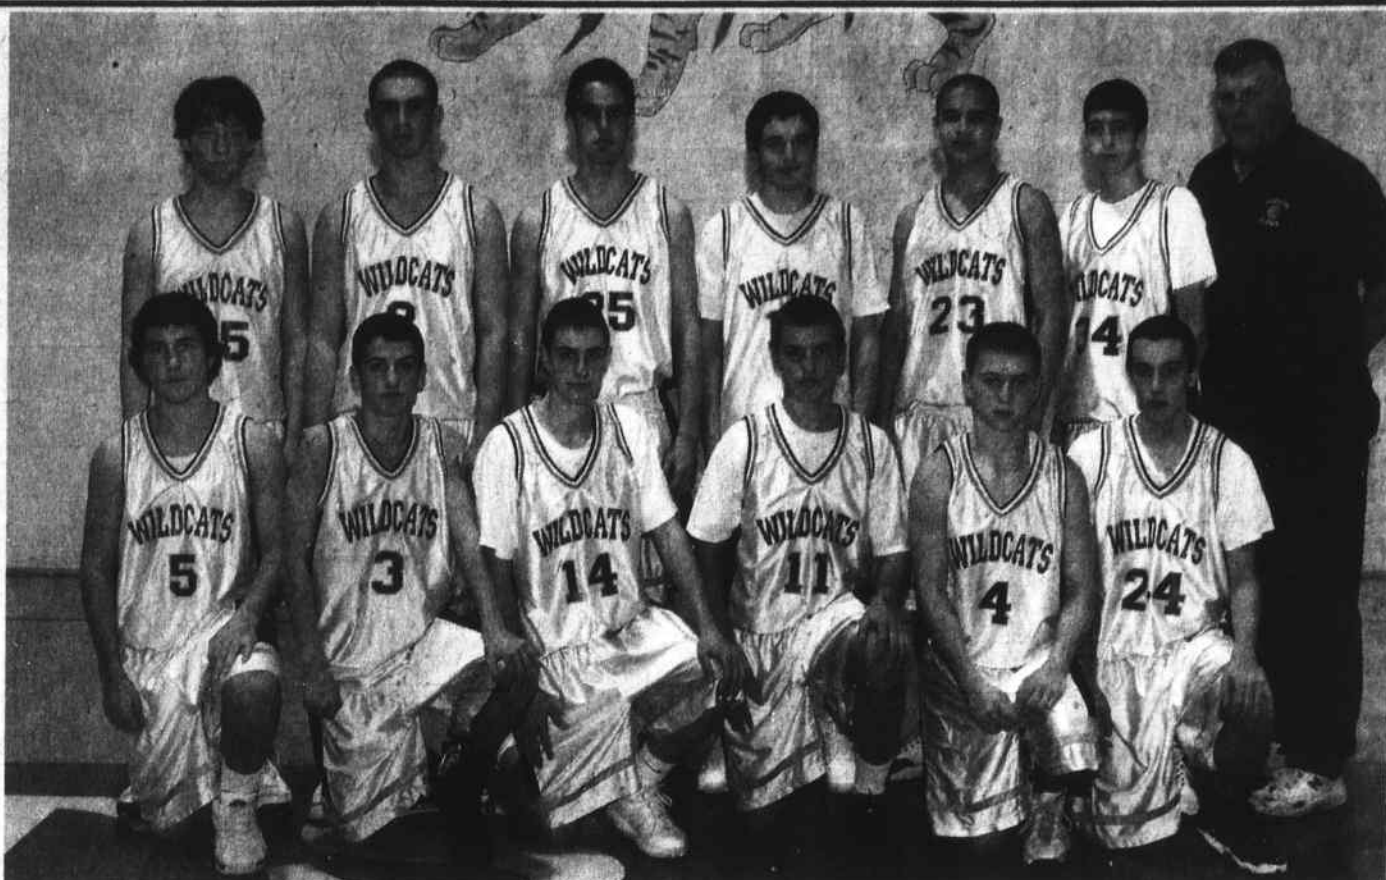

Mike Kelly and David Mello: "Mike got a lot of rebounds for us, he was like a coach on the court, which is always nice. David Mello contributed quite a bit. He had a lot of rebounds."

Coach Woods' club rebounded from their loss from Masco in the first game to beat them at Cushing Gymnasium, 59-53. The team did find themselves a rival, that being the Scarlet Knights of North Andover. The Wildcats succumbed to them twice, but just narrowly losing the second time around.

"This is a good bunch of kids," said Woods. "The program is very strong. They're all young kids. There's always something they can work on. We really want to play AAU or find a camp or something. But they're all very athletic, smart, they move the ball really well. They have a bright future."

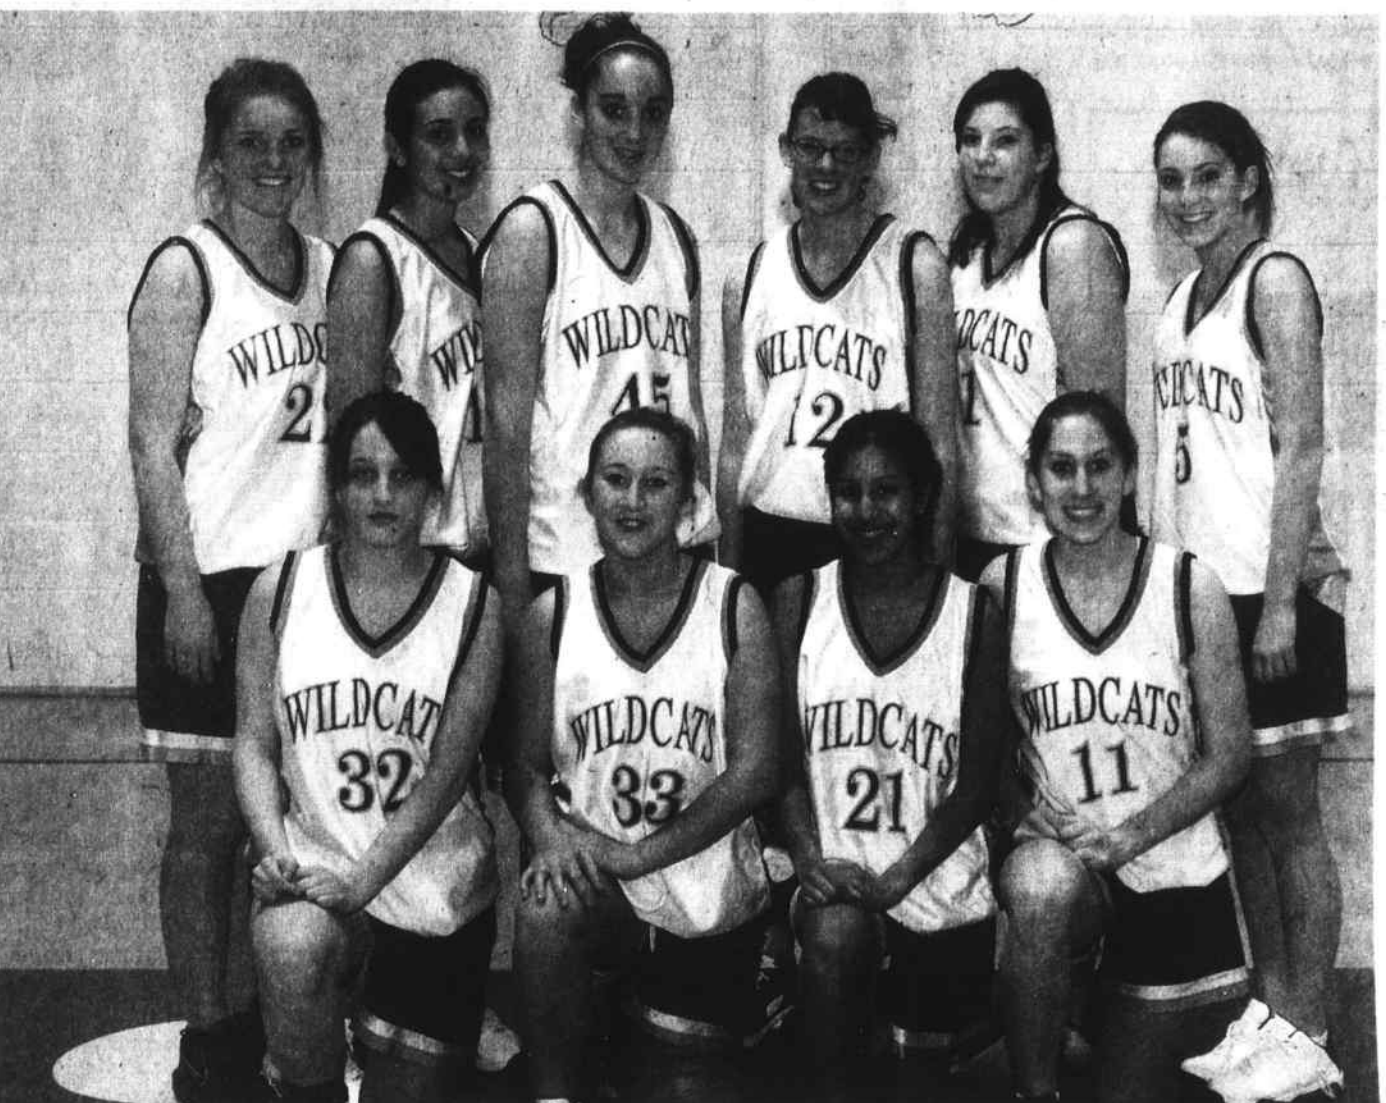

"The program is so strong, these kids have their work

Wilmington Squirt III's end in an exciting 4-4 tie

The Wilmington Squirt 3 Wildcats are rolling into the last week of the Valley League season on a nine game unbeaten streak.

This past weekend the Cats took on a scrappy Salem/Swampscot team. In the first period forwards Jocelyn Sullivan, Matt Blair, Sarah King and Jonathon Simmons pounded the S & S goalie with shots. Jamie Stone, David Peterson, Ellen Farrell and Ryan Maher were making some great pass plays in the offensive zone.

The Big defense of Spencer Maffei, Samantha Grasso, Brendan McGaffigan and Bret Malone were busy stopping the attack in our end. When S & S attackers did get thru, Wildcat netminder, Christiaan Medugno came up with the right save. At the 5 minute mark David Peterson nailed a Bret Malone rebound for the first goal. S & S followed up quickly with their own tally. S & S went ahead two minutes into the middle period when Medugno got beat on a breakaway. Five minutes later they went up 3-1.

The Cats were not done though. Peterson hit again on a pass from Ryan Maher. Matt Blair tied it up with 37 seconds left. The third period was a back and forth match with S & S going ahead, but Wilmington came back to finish it up with a 4-4 tie.

On Sunday morning, the Wildcats took on the Newburyport Clippers at the Valley Forum in Haverhill. This was a complete goalie clinic as both netminders put on a show. Wildcat goalie Christiaan Medugno faced 42 shots and managed to save each one. Half way into the second period, Ellen Farrell laid a sweet pass onto the stick of Mighty Matt Blair who went top shelf with what would prove to be the game winner. Every member of the Wildcats stepped up and played a solid game for Coach John Malone.

At 5:25 of the third period, Jamie Stone stole a pass in the neutral zone that Matt Blair brought in and passed off to Sarah King right in front. Sarah banged in the insurance goal, making it 2-0. The super defense of every skater preserved the shutout for rookie goalie Medugno.

cut out for them. The harder they work over the summer, the better the chance they have at playing at the next level."

Girls JV Basketball

"Success is not always measured in wins and losses but rather steady improvement." These are the words of Coach Audrey Cabral-Pini, whose team finished the season with an 8-12 record.

"We lost five games by under five points and a break here or there would have been the difference," said Cabral-Pini.

This season's squad was particularly inexperienced, with no returning players. And inexperience can lead to some confusion.

"Often times we were just not patient. As a result early in the season we did not have good time management," said Cabral-Pini. "Many games we had some very good looks but just could not get the ball to drop."

As the history books will tell you, there is always one remedy to fix any offensive woes. And that is, of course, a good defense. The Lady Cats ran a full court man-to-man press, which kept nearly every game close.

Early season struggles slowly began to fade away as the season progressed.

"Early in the season," said Cabral-Pini, "we were constantly in foul trouble which often led to girls playing out of position. Later, we had less and less girls in foul trouble."

Cabral-Pini also talked about her team had great team chemistry, even when the wins were not accumulating. She went on to say how her team steadily improved all season.

The team's roster includes: Ashley White, Taylor Hanley, Taylor Cushing, Tori Lord, Caitlin McDonough, Kerri Spry, Sarah Luz, Angelina Amato, Nicole D'Agostino and Jessica Weaver.

Tewksbury High Freshmen Hoop teams compete on the court

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

The Tewksbury Memorial High School boy's freshman basketball team finished their season with a 4-10 record this season. Coaching the team this season was first year head coach Michael Earley, who graduated from TMHS in 2004 where he played four years for the varsity basketball team.

Earley said the 4-10 record should not reflect the progress the players made throughout the season.

"Even though we did not manage many wins, improvement was our key success factor in every individual from day one," said Earley, who helped out with the JV and varsity as an assistant coach last year. "We lost five games under five points including a heartbreaking loss against Billerica at the buzzer with 2.3 seconds left after an amazing comeback. We were down 24-6 at halftime and stormed back to take a two point lead with two seconds left only to let it slip away by a half court shot at the buzzer."

"We also lost a game to undefeated Cambridge by two points. It was tie ball game with 45 seconds left but we just fell short."

Earley said that he enjoyed being the coach of the freshman basketball squad as he got to teach the players how to be contributors for the team.

"Their willingness to learn was great," said Earley. "You have to figure out the best way for them to respond. Make it fun but keep it on a serious level. You have to teach them how meaningful playing for a team like this can be and if they stick with it, how beneficial it can be to them later in life."

Earley added that all the players showed improvements from the beginning of the season to the end too.

"At the beginning of the season some of the kids couldn't make a lefty layup," said Earley. "By the end everyone had it down pat. Each player improved their individual skills as well as their knowledge of the game. Big men developed post moves and guards developed ball handling and shooting skills. As a former player who played year round attending camps and playing AAU, I had a lot to teach them. They all responded well and gained full grasp of the concepts I tried to teach them."

Earley said several players on the team were able to give solid performances night in and night out.

"We had a number of injuries this season but we had a number of standouts," said Earley. "We had 17 guys so it was tough getting them all playing time but they all just wanted to win and worked hard every day in practice to improve their game."

"Bobby Lombard played extremely well as our starting point guard all season proving to be a great scorer as well as a tremendous defender. He played with a lot of heart, and as one of the captains proved to be a great leader too. He had a number of 20 point games and at times proved to be deadly from the three point line."

"Franky McLaughlin, our captain, was one of our most consistent players, as he proved to be one of our best defenders and was a very unselfish player. He played with a lot of heart and determination, and any coach would be lucky to coach a kid like Franky."

Earley added that captain Sean Doucette was able to contribute greatly for the squad all season long.

"Sean Doucette, our other captain, had some tremendous games scoring the ball but was troubled with injuries all year," said Earley. "With a healthy Doucette, we could have had some games go our way. He cracked two of his ribs and got sick twice which forced him to miss some games. He can score the ball and loves the game. Sean will be a big factor in this program for the next couple of years."

When Doucette got injured, Earley said many other play-

Redmen Relay team takes 21st at National Meet

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

On Sunday afternoon, four Tewksbury Memorial High School student-athletes competed together as part of the National High School Track-and-Field Meet held at the Reggie Lewis Center in Roxbury.

The team of seniors Nicole Skotz and Becca Dooley with sophomores Leanne Tucker and Ashley Toland finished 21st out of 29 teams in the 4x800 relay team coming in with a combined time of 9:43.87, which ranks as the team's second fastest time of the season (9:37.56 at the All-State Meet two weeks ago).

Toland was the lead-off leg and finished with a split of 2:24, and she was followed by Skotz (2:29.8), Dooley who had a personal best of 2:29.4 and Tucker (2:20.3).

"Personally, I'm thrilled for these girls," said head coach Peter Molloy. "To run in a national caliber meet in your own back yard, so to speak, is special. Family members were able to watch them compete on the biggest stage. They are lucky."

ers stepped up for the team.

Chris Bettano as well as Allyn Hood were great all season," said Earley. "Bettano could have been our most improved player all year. He could be the fastest kid I have ever seen and he was our best defender and developed a great offensive game by the end of the year. He started the whole second half of the year and contributed 100 percent night in and night out. He had a number of games scoring in double digits including a 17 point effort against Dracut."

"Allyn Hood was a great offensive player for us as well. In practice he was lights out but he just needed to gain the confidence in games. He was

The Tewksbury foursome finished 10th in their heat, good for 21st overall.

"I'm very happy with the way they ran, I thought they represented their town quite well," said Molloy. "However, what makes me the most happy is that I'm confident that in 15-20 years from now these girls will look back on their high school experience with fond memories of their track experience."

The relay team's best time of 9:37.56 ranks 44th in the entire country this season.

Additionally, Tucker received some terrific news over the past week. First she was named the MVC Division 2 Runner of the Year, becoming the fourth Redmen athlete to grab the honors following Stacey Ossinger (04-05), Kat Soni (06-07) and Kristen Judge (07-08). Tucker's success mostly came in the 1,000 where she was a Division 3 state champion. The sophomore's best time in that event was 3:00.66, which puts her 60th in the entire country.

a great spark off the bench and played some solid minutes. He had a 15 point game against Cambridge and knocked down some key three pointers."

Earley added that several other players for the team are worth mentioning for the efforts they gave throughout the year.

"Christopher Fandel and Michael Petrowski were our two starting big men," said Earley. "Tremendous players with a lot of potential made it tough for the opposing teams to get the ball down low. Mike blocked a lot of shots and had some great scoring nights. Chris pulled down a lot of rebounds and proved to be a great scorer as well. These two will be a great combination for the years to come.

"Ryan Etherton is another player who improved tremendously. Pulling down rebounds, getting after loose balls, and trying his hardest every single minute earned him a lot of playing time. Scotty Thurlow, Jaylin Sparks, Eric Heider and Matt Rauseo also contributed with minutes off of the bench."

Earley said that he overall had a tremendous time coaching the freshman boys basketball team as his first year of coaching was everything he expected it to be.

"They showed me respect all season and rose up to the challenge," said Earley. "Practices weren't easy, as they were just as tough as the JV and Varsity. Teaching the game that has meant so much to me in the past is fun. It's great to be around the game and kids who want to learn. I couldn't have asked for a better group of kids in my first year as a head coach."

The roster for the 2008-2009 TMHS freshman boys' basketball team includes players: Bobby Lombard, Sean Doucette, Franky McLaughlin, Chris Bettano, Chris Fandel, Mike Petrowski, Ryan Etherton, Allyn Hood, Jaylin Sparks, Scotty Thurlow, Eric Heider, Matt Rauseo, Billy Gavin, Chris Boyages, Mikey Mongiello, Kevin Leary, and Scott Riply. Also helping coaching the freshman team was Doc Derocco and Brendan Campbell, whom both helped out and put in a lot of work with the big guys.

Girls Freshmen Basketball

The Tewksbury Memorial High Schools girl's freshman basketball team recently just wrapped up their season a few weeks ago, as they finished with a record of 9-5.

Coaching the team this season was Larry Wenz, who coached the freshman team for the first time this season. For the past ten years Wenz had previously been a bench coach for the both the freshman and junior-varsity girls basketball squads.

Wenz said he had a great time coaching the team this year as he said the players had excellent camaraderie with one another.

"As a coach I enjoyed how the girls actively worked together to develop their skills and resulting self-confidence," said Wenz. "The group of young ladies were a pleasure to coach, as they wanted to learn how to play the game. They were always competitive, and they had fun doing it. As a coach there is nothing else I could have asked for."

Wenz added that freshman basketball players must have certain characteristics in order to succeed on and off the court.

"A freshman basketball player must have a passion for the game, the desire for self-improvement, and enjoy the challenges of competition," said Wenz. "Every one of the girls has skills that a varsity team needs for success. Any one of them could be a key contributor on the varsity team if they make the commitment to the best player they can be."

Wenz also said he enjoyed watching the players progress individually and as a team throughout the season.

"The most significant improvement was the understanding of how to use individual skills within the context of team play at both ends of the floor," said Wenz.

Regional 911

By PAUL FEELY

It's still very early in the discussion phase, but if everything were to come to fruition some time in the not-so-distant future residents in the communities of Reading, Melrose, Wakefield and Stoneham could have their calls for emergency services handled by a central dispatch station.

It's part of an effort by many communities across the state and country to look at regionalization of services, as a way to save money during difficult economic times.

Money was just approved last week (as part of the federal stimulus plan) for a similar regional dispatch center that would serve 13 cities and towns north of Boston.

According to published reports, the town of Tewksbury is also considering joining a regional 911 group, which would include Lowell.

"We are looking at something similar with other towns that are around us," said Reading Board of Selectmen Chairman Steve Goldy. "I think setting up groups like this is a trend that is going to continue."

Thirteen Essex County cities and towns, including North Andover and Middleton, would be served by a regional emergency 911 dispatch center that will be built near the county jail in Middleton and managed by the Essex County Sheriff's Department. The project just last week received a commitment of almost $7 million from the Patrick Administration.

As a result of the creation of the regional dispatch center, existing dispatch centers in each of the participating communities in the group (Danvers, Essex, Manchester, Methuen, North Andover, Topsfield, Wenham, Beverly, Ipswich, Marblehead, Middleton, Swampscott and Hamilton) would be closed and consolidated into a new call center, which will serve approximately 215,000 people.

Construction of the new regional center will begin soon, and authorities in those communities anticipate it could be operational within 18 months.

It's an idea that has been catching on in areas across the state, after lawmakers approved a bill allowing regional centers last July, followed by Governor Deval Patrick setting up the State 911 Department.

"We haven't had full discussions yet, but we have high-level buy-in from the selectmen and the town managers, and that's as far as we've got," said Goldy. "A lot of good could come out of it, especially on the best practices side of it."

"It's an interesting idea, and definitely an approach that deserves to be explored," said Reading Police Chief James Cormier. "It's another form of regionalization. As a department, we have been involved in other forms of regionalization, such as the North Eastern Massachusetts Law Enforcement Council (NEMLEC), which we've been a part of since the 1960s."

Calls to the town managers of both Wakefield and Stoneham about this topic were not returned prior to deadline.

Putting together such a group is not an easy task.

"One of the things you need to decide is if you want to band together with other like-minded communities that are around you," said Reading Town Manager Peter Hechenbleikner. "One of the challenges you have is figuring out what are the communities that you have the most in common with. They also need to be contiguous - you don't want to partner with Greenfield for something like vehicle maintenance; we wouldn't be taking our vehicles out there for service. The dispatch initiative we're working on is with a group that includes Stoneham, Wakefield, Melrose and Reading."

"One of the nice things about involving Wakefield is that they don't do central dispatch, so you're not sort of pushing anybody out; nobody's losing anything," said Hechenbleikner. "I'm still not sure what the 'right' approach is, but it's certainly worth looking at."

Supporters of these types of centers say they would save departments from spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to update their 911 technology and that with a regional center, it's easier to share information between departments.

But the idea is not without its detractors, many of whom bring up the issue of communities with different area codes sharing a dispatch center.

"One of the issues you run into with dispatching is the area codes," said Hechenbleikner. "One of the ways you can get around that is through the use of geographic mapping, but you would only be able to do it if all the communities have geographic mapping. Then, it's who keeps up the mapping system - is each town responsible for their own? You have to find partners willing to work this through. Then there's always the argument the dispatchers won't know the other towns. Well, if you go to the mid-Atlantic states, dispatching is done on a county

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"LAST HOUSE ON THE LEFT" A GRUESOME FILM

"THE LAST HOUSE ON THE LEFT" is not for the faint of heart, or stomach. But it's a good, old fashioned scary movie that will haunt you when you go home.

"THE LAST HOUSE ON THE LEFT"

GRADE: **

Why do maniacal killers always pick beautiful lake-side vacation homes as the spots to do their dirty work?

When Wes Craven directed the original "The Last House on the Left" in 1972, he revolutionized the 'serial killer in a secluded spot' genre, which led to all the 'Friday the 13th' movies and others of its kind that are still made today. So why not update the original into a modern-day setting? Craven isn't directing this time, but he helped guide Dennis Iliadis to ensure that this version retains major elements of his vicious original.

The plot goes a little like this: seventeen-year-old Mari (Sara Paxton) and her parents are looking forward to a break at their secluded lake home. But good girl Mari and her bubbly friend Paige get into a very sticky situation involving a Manson family-like band of traveling murderers, led by charismatic prison escapee Krug (Garret Dillahunt). Like the Manson crew, they delight in graphically torturing their victims, no matter whether they are law enforcement officers or young girls.

When the killers leave Mari for dead in the lake, they somehow wind up as her parents' guests on a very stormy night. Luckily, champion swimmer Mari manages to make her way home, alerting her parents to the killers asleep in the guest house.

Seeing what their guests did to their daughter, rather than call the authorities Dr. and Mrs. Collingwood (Tony Goldwyn and Monica Potter) decide to take matters into their own hands, and decide to help each one of them along to an early checkout time - from their lives.

"The Last House on the Left" is a gruesome film, and not for the faint of heart or stomach. It's very gory, and garbage disposals are featured doing things they were not invented to do. On top of that, there is a drawn out and graphic rape scene that many may want to turn their heads away from the screen for while it plays out.

But if what you are looking for is a good, old fashioned scary movie, there's not another film out there right now that will haunt you like this one.

"WATCHMEN"

GRADE: ***

"Watchmen", the big-budget, big screen (see it in IMAX if you can) version of 12 graphic novels published in 1986 and 1987 that have become so popular they have gained cult status, brings the tale to life the right way - almost.

The setting of the story is in an alternate version of the mid-1980s. Richard Nixon is president and gets elected to a questionable fourth term. The U.S. is on the verge of nuclear war with the Soviet Union. There are basically two sets of so-called super heroes. Most have more in common with the mere mortal Batman than Superman. Group one are out of the 1940s. Their replacements are 1980s modern day.

The Nixon administration bans all super hero activity unless it is done for the government. Only Dr. Manhattan (once a human who now possesses awesome super powers) and the duplicitous Comedian take the president up on his offer.

Watchmen starts with the murder of the Comedian, who doubles as a semi-link from the new group to the old. Rorschach, a good guy but with tendencies toward violent near-sociopath behavior, investigates and learns of a conspiracy to rule the world. Dragged into the mystery and into romance is Night Owl and Dr. Manhattan's estranged girlfriend, Silk Spectre.

Despite a running time of about 2 hours and 40 minutes, this complex and compelling story whips by in a blink. Even so, this scaled-down version of the story leaves the uninitiated to the story wanting more, and longtime fans of the comics felling like they just didn't get it quite right.

ACRYLIC PAINTING AT LYNNFIELD ART GUILD

The Lynnfield Art Guild (LAG) continues its season with an acrylic painting demonstration by Robert Fraser on Thursday, March 19 at 7 p.m. at the Lynnfield Senior Center (the Old South School), 525 Salem Street, Lynnfield.

Bob Fraser is an award-winning Salem artist who has been painting for over 30 years in the "new" acrylic medium. His paintings capture the mood, light and feeling of familiar New England locales in a style that is at once representational and freely expressive.

Bob works on canvas or board, starting with house painting brushes, gradually working down to smaller and smaller artists' brushes, and often ending up painting with a toothpick for the finest details.

The public is invited to attend this and all monthly LAG demonstrations, which include refreshments and the opportunity to meet other area artists. Doors open at 6:45 p.m.

The LAG has over 150 members in art, crafts, and photography from over 28 area communities. Membership includes the privilege of participating in the winter and spring annual shows. For further information call 781-334-7145.

This seminar will be offered on Tuesday, March 31 at 7 p.m. at Wakefield High School. Fee is $20 per person/family. Pre-registration is required. Call 781-246-6444 for further information.

VOLUNTEER PLOVER WARDENS NEEDED

Parker River National Wildlife Refuge, located on Plum Island, is looking for Volunteer Plover Wardens for the 2009 Plover season. Beginning in April of each year, the entire Refuge beach is closed to all public entry to provide undisturbed nesting habitat for the federally threatened Piping Plover. The Volunteer Plover Warden program significantly contributes to the breeding success of these birds.

Plover Wardens are stationed at both the north and south ends of the Refuge's 6 1/2 mile beach. Responsibilities include greeting visitors, providing information concerning the beach closure, and notifying Refuge officers of any closure violations.

These volunteers work varied 4 hour shifts (amount is flexible) from April - August. Because they are field positions, volunteers must be prepared for the sometimes unpredictable beach weather.

The work is rewarding. The volunteer provides a valuable service to the Refuge visitors by informing them of Refuge policies and programs. They also help the Refuge wildlife by protecting valuable habitat, thus helping assure the Plover's survival.

Anyone interested in this wildlife service at Parker River, is encouraged to call the Refuge at 978-465-5754, ext 208 for more information.

Durgin, a local wood craftsman, has been visiting Parker River for years and has been inspired by the marvelous sights he's encountered. Bob has interpreted those memories into his delicate craft of life-like wood carvings.

Stoneham Cat Society Abandoned cats in our area need your help

They're out there, even if you don't see them. Feral cats — domesticated cats living in the wild — are our unseen neighbors.

Some of these cats have reproduced over a few generations, but not many. They do get picked up by animal control. But there always seems to be a new supply of cats, and usually they're not related to the ones previously picked up.

In other words, people are abandoning them.

Wilmington Animal Control Officer Ellen Sawyer goes out regularly trying to catch these cats. She works along with The Stoneham Cat Society which also works in other towns. Recently, she has been trapping some cats that she calls "cliff dwellers", living in rock abutments in an industrial area. It is heart-breaking, she said, to see their small faces peeking out from small crevices in the rocks, cold, wet frightened and hungry.

What's worse is when she's been going to see some particular cats for weeks, feeding and attempting to trap them, only to have them disappear. Cats don't generally move on. Something probably happened to them.

Cats do not fare well when abandoned. Lacking food and shelter, they must face weather, disease, cars, predatory wildlife and fights with other cats.

Yet, some people feel that the best way to get rid of an unwanted cat is to take it somewhere and dump it. For people who have unwanted cats or kittens, there are alternatives. The Stoneham Cat Society and the Woburn Feral Cat Coalition trap feral cats, accept unwanted cats, and try to find good homes for them. These groups consist of hard-working people who use their own time, money and resources to help the cats.

In most cases, the cats are already conditioned to human contact, so they were obviously abandoned. The volunteers give the cats a home, have them checked by a vet, get them their shots, and make sure they are spayed or neutered. But adoption is an important part of this process. There are always more cats coming in.

Spaying or neutering a cat is extremely important, both to manage population and to make the cat a better pet. An extremely good service is available from the Catmobile, which will spay a cat for $75. Here's the best part: the package includes a microchip, an exam, spaying, vaccination, flea treatment and deworming. The Catmobile phone is 888-495-7729, or email spay-mass@mrfers.org.

The Stoneham Cat Society and the Woburn Feral Cat Coalition have cats available for adoption, and always welcome donations of food, litter, cages or money. Volunteers are needed for foster care. There is a fee for adoptions.

If you can help, contact the Stoneham Cat Society, PO Box 80096 Stoneham, MA 02180 or the Woburn Feral Cat Coalition, P.O. Box 3127, Woburn, MA 01888, or email Woburncats@gmail.com.

About the Towns Back to the drawing boards

by Phyllis Nissen

-Water rising:
Tewksbury- "In financial news that came before the Board of Selectmen..., the Town's bond rating improved, the snow and ice expense is over-budget, and water rates are on the rise," notes the "Tewksbury Town Crier."

"The Board revisited the issue of water rates that had been tabled at its previous meeting. Town Manager David Cressman said he'd been hoping to hold off on any increase until the next fiscal year, but two factors led him to bring the issue before Selectmen at this time instead. First, a very wet summer last year led to a 10 percent decrease in water usage because not as many properties watered lawns. Second, an increase in the number of people that are not paying their bills led to an increase in liens. While the liens will be paid on the tax bills, the process can take a while and is not an immediate revenue recovery source."

"While selectmen discussed the replacement of water meters, the conversion of the billing system, and possible fees to deter delay in payment, the only thing they voted on was the implementation of a water rate increase that takes effect going back to January 1. The increase will amount to a 5 percent increase this year (because only half of the fiscal year remains), which when doubled for a whole year corresponds to a 10 percent increase next year."

"For example, Cressman estimated that 45 percent of users currently use less than 60,000 gallons a year. The increase would cost them on average just under $9.00 for the remainder of this fiscal year and just under $18.00 in the next fiscal year. Residents using 60,000 to 149,000 gallons will see an average increase of 24.86 for the remainder of this fiscal year and 49.72 next year, and residents using 150,000 or more will see an average increase of $64.84 this fiscal year and $129.68 next year."

"Board of Selectmen Chairman Todd Johnson asked about the financial state of the water program saying, 'This hole gets deeper as we go into the year?'"

"Absolutely," was Cressman's quick reply...."

-Everything's great, downtown: Winchester- "...the town learned that the state Department of Housing and Community Development has awarded the town a grant to assist with downtown planning," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"According to a letter from Undersecretary Tina Brooks, the town has been awarded a fiscal 2009 Massachusetts Downtown Initiative Technical Assistance Site Visit Program grant up to $10,000."

"The award provides consultant services to assist the town with mixed-use site analysis in the category of Economics of Downtown."

"The subject of economic development and the town center is one that has been under study as part of phase 1 of the Planning Board's new master plan. The Master Plan Steering Committee identified the following goals for the downtown: enhancement of existing commercial areas, creation of mixed-use residential/commercial facilities, maintenance and enhancement of the town center's character, and cultivation and attraction of new customers to the town center and other commercial areas."

"The committee identified four sites for an economic and design analysis. These include the Waterfield parking lot, DPW site, Mill Pond Building (former laundry building) site on Converse Place, and the Town Hall/Jenks Senior Center parking lot. (The Stop and Shop lot was under consideration at one time but has been eliminated from the list.)"

"These sites, according to the grant application, have redevelopment potential that needs to be examined. The sites all present challenges including (but not limited to) proximity to the river and location within a floodplain, proximity to the overhead MBTA train line, topographical changes, easements to other parties and other similar constraints...."

-On a roll: Wakefield- When the Board of Selectmen, along with Town Accountant Kevin Gill, gathered to review the forecasted budgets for FY10, which begins July 1, all budgets were approved, according to the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"For every budget other than Finance Committee, Planning Board, and Veterans Department that had personal services, those services took up most of the budget. Areas highlighted below are other areas where much money was spent,"

notes the "Chronicle."

"The first budget discussed was the Treasurer's Department. The recommended budget for FY10 is $153,567, which is an increase from the FY09 budget of $2,547 (mainly due to Town Treasurer John J. McCarthy's raise of $961.05)."

"The areas of the budget where the most money is being used are the tax title at $7,000 and bank charges at $8,500."

"The next budget approved was the Legal Department. The recommended budget for FY10 is $132,518, which is a decrease from the FY09 budget of $263."

"The areas of the budget where the most money is being used are the professional services at $38,000 and the books and publications at $5,600."

"The next budget approved was the Tax Collector Department...."

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: Who was the first player to dunk in an NCAA women's basketball game?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Freshman pitcher Jack Leathersich (Beverly) scattered four hits, two walks, an earned run and four strikeouts over seven innings as UMass Lowell defeated Adelphi, 2-1, Saturday afternoon in a non-conference baseball clash at William J. Bonomo Field.

With the victory, the River Hawks improved to 2-1 entering its 11-game series in Florida.

FRESHMAN 3B PAT DEVLIN (TEWKSBURY) batted 2 for 4 (singles) with a stolen base while freshman RF Matt Jacobs (Hudson, MA) went 1 for 2 with a RBI double and a walk.

The River Hawks opened the scoring in the fourth inning when junior C Jared Notargiacomo (Newburyport, MA) singled to centerfield to score SOPHOMORE 1B TAYLOR VON KRIEGERBERGH (STONEHAM). Jacobs then doubled to right field to score junior SS J.T. Leary (Newburyport, MA), who had singled earlier.

•UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS BOSTON WOMEN'S ICE HOCKEY PLAYER RACHEL SOUSA (WOBURN) has been named the Eastern College Athletic Conference East Player of the Week for the week of February 16-22, it was announced today by the conference. It marks the third time this season that a UMB women's hockey player has earned the award with junior forward Maria Nasta (Andover, MA) taking the honor last week and SOPHOMORE FORWARD LAUREN DURAN (WOBURN) being named for the week of November 3-9.

Sousa tallied six points on four goals and two assists in three games. The sophomore netted a goal and assisted on another in the Beacons' 4-0 victory over New England College on February 20 and registered her first career hat trick to go with a helper in UMass Boston's 5-2 win at Castleton State College on February 23. She became the fourth player this season to record a hat trick for the Beacons and the eighth player in program history.

The forward has played 23 of 25 games for UMass Boston this season, while ranking second on the team with 16 assists and ninth among ECAC East leaders. Her 22 points places her third for the Beacons and her six goals is the fourth-highest total on the team. A graduate of Woburn High School, Sousa has two power play goals and a game-winner on the season as well and has committed just five penalties all season. Her nine (2-7-9) points on the power play rank 15th in ECAC East. She has registered six multi-point efforts this year to rank third on the squad and has put together a pair of three-game point-streaks on the season.

Sousa was named the ECAC East Rookie of the Year last season and has racked up 55 points on 19 goals and 36 assists in 49 career games at UMass Boston. She currently ranks sixth on the career points and assists list at the school and her total of goals puts her seventh. A product of the Chelmsford Lions Junior Hockey program, she has 17 career multi-point outings to place her fourth for the Beacons and her eighth lifetime power play goals puts her fifth among UMass Boston greats. She also has three game-winning scores in her career to place eighth at UMB.

•Need some help with this week's question? The feat was achieved in 1984.

•BATES SENIOR FORWARD VAL BECKWITH (WOBURN) has been named the 2009 Maine Player of the Year, as determined by the Maine Women's Basketball Coaches Association. The honor comes two days after Beckwith also earned NESCAC Player of the Year honors.

Beckwith also received First Team All-State honors for the third consecutive season.

Starting all 25 contests for the third straight winter, Beckwith led her squad in scoring for the third year in a row as she ranked second overall in the league with 18.3 points per game - a single-season career-high - while hitting an even 45.0 percent of her shots.

Beckwith was at her best during conference competition this season, as her 19.0 points per game against league foes was unmatched by any other player. She also managed to grab a team-high 6.3 rebounds, dish out 2.40 assists and nab 1.64 steals per game.

Beckwith, who scored a personal-best 28 points during a 71-52 win at Colby on Jan. 24, finished her career at Bates second all-time in scoring with 1,470 points, just eight shy of the program record held by Emily King '00. Her 534 career rebounds put her at No. 18 on Bates' all-time list.

Beckwith set program records this season for free throws made (142) and attempted (190) in a season, and for free throws made in a career (392).

Beckwith was named MWBCA Player of the Week on two occasions this season, Dec. 8 and Jan. 20, when she also received Player of the week honors from the NESCAC, ECAC and NEWBA.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: The first player to dunk in an NCAA women's basketball game was Georgeann Wells of West Virginia in 1984.

•DO YOU KNOW SOMETHING WE DON'T? If you have information about a local athlete that you would like to see appear in this column, please email it to readingchronicle@comcast.net, or mail it to: Paul Feely, Middlesex East Sports, P.O. Box 240, Reading, Ma., 01867, or call Paul at 781-944-2200.

Regional 911 From S-1

basis. There's hundreds of square miles, with central dispatching, so somehow I think we could figure out dispatching for four communities."

"With today's technology, there's so much opportunity for this type of thing," said Goldy.

"We all have the E-911," said Hechenbleikner. "It's a case where each department in each community may have different procedures, but it's an area where they may be able to get together to determine best practices and procedures."

Could a dispatcher who has worked their whole career in one community momentarily confuse streets with similar names in two communities?

"Is there a chance? Yes, but we have good employees, and I know the other communities do too, so I know they would be able to adapt," said Hechenbleikner. "When you call dispatch right now, all your information comes right up on your screen. You don't even have to say a word. 10 years ago, maybe you would be a little more concerned about that sort of thing, but these days, all the information is right there."

One other point detractors raise is the issue of residents who use only cell phones rather than traditional land lines, but neither Goldy nor Hechenbleikner feel that would be an issue.

"It will be the same with cell phones, if not now than within the next six months," said Hechenbleikner. "They started about five or six years ago putting GPS units into cell phones. If a community doesn't have it, such as Reading has the GIS mapping and Stoneham doesn't, then when you get together with them they understand what the best practices are, and to the extent that a community develops that sort of system, that's a good thing."

A regional center involving the local towns is still a long way off, and there are many things that could prevent it from ever coming to fruition.

"What will make this thing work is the personality of the people involved," said Hechenbleikner. "That's the Selectmen, it's the town managers, the department heads, even the dispatchers. If anyone along the way wants to sabotage it, you certainly can, because there's plenty of opportunities to do that. But if everyone wants to make this work, it will."

Spring is near Prevent colds and the flu when the weather warms

Just because we're saying goodbye to winter doesn't mean the cold and flu season will be going the way of Jack Frost, too.

Rhinoviruses and Coronaviruses are believed to cause a large percentage of all adult colds, primarily in winter to early spring. However, more than 200 different viruses are known to cause the symptoms of the common cold - and symptoms of varying severity. In the course of a year, individuals in the United States suffer one billion colds, according to some estimates.

In terms of the flu, in the U.S. the peak of flu season occurs anywhere from late November through March. But it's still possible to have the flu into early spring. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), approximately 5 percent to 20 percent of U.S. residents get the flu, and more than 200,000 persons are hospitalized for flu-related complications each year.

The common cold and flu are caused by viruses that can be contracted in a number of ways. One of the primary ways is through "droplet spread," or when droplets of fluid are propelled from a cough or sneeze from an infected person, and then come in contact with the nose or mouth of another. These viruses can also be contracted by touching a surface contaminated with a cold or flu virus. Many do not know that viruses may stay on surfaces anywhere from a few seconds to 48 hours. Non-porous materials, such as plastic, could harbor the viruses longer than porous materials, such as fabric.

Preventing colds and the flu takes a few easy steps:

- * Wash your hands frequently with soap and water, for at least 15 to 20 seconds to kill viruses and bacteria.

- * Use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer on occasion if you cannot immediately wash your hands.

- * Get a flu shot.

- * Regularly clean your desk, phone and computer keyboard and mouse - at home and at the office - with disinfectant sprays or wipes.

- * Encourage those who are sick to stay home from work, school and other commitments. Avoid close contact with sick individuals.

Health & Beauty Eat your vegetables -- that means you, parents!

Eat your vegetables!" is a plea often heard around family dinner tables. Why is it that many young children don't seem to like vegetables? Are kids just born that way? "It turns out that taste preferences are, in fact, developed prenatally," says Jane Kostelc, early childhood specialist at Parents as Teachers National Center. Research conducted by Leann Birch, Ph.D., at Pennsylvania State University shows that unborn babies may detect taste differences as early as the 13th week of pregnancy.

Prenatal Influences

The taste of amniotic fluid changes with the foods the mother eats. Pregnant women who eat a wide variety of foods, including vegetables, expose their children to different tastes. Dr. Birch notes that babies' gulp rate of amniotic fluid increases when sweetness is present. "So even unborn babies like dessert!" says Kostelc.

Breast milk is another way nursing babies are exposed to a variety of different tastes. The taste of formula is consistent from bottle to bottle, but the taste of breast milk changes based on what the nursing mom eats. Eating a wide variety of vegetables gives a nursing baby a sample of what's to come once he gets those teeth.

Toddler Experimentation

According to Kostelc, early exposure is an important factor in encouraging children to develop a taste for vegetables. Toddlers typically become more selective about the foods they will accept. Give your baby a wide variety of steamed vegetables cut in small pieces as soon as she can safely eat them.

Some nutritionists recommend exposing your child to as many as 200 different foods by the age of 2 years. "The more opportunity your toddler has to experiment with different tastes, the more willing she will be to accept variety," says Kostelc. "Your child may narrow her food choices in the preschool years, but she is more likely to eat a variety of vegetables later on if she has been exposed to them early."

Texture Counts, Too

As your child is able to eat solid foods safely, present him with a variety of textures. Cooked green beans are crunchy and mashed sweet potatoes are smooth. Expose your child to both. Part of the reason children reject vegetables, says Kostelc, is that they don't like the feel of them in their mouths. Don't fall into the habit of giving your child only foods with smooth, slippery textures.

Does your child have to eat a heaping helping of steamed spinach to be exposed to it? Experts say no! A child may have to taste a new food 15 to 25 times before he is ready to eat a few bites. Don't worry about counting and don't be concerned with rejection; just keep putting those lima beans on the plate and cheerfully encouraging your child to take a taste. Smelling and touching foods also count as exposures. Let your curious toddler touch and smooch his zucchini. Some just may wind up in his mouth!

It Starts With YOU!

You are the most important model for your child's good eating habits. Fill your plate with a variety of nutritious foods, including vegetables. "Let your child see that you enjoy - or are willing to taste - vegetables and other nutritious foods," advises Kostelc. "Young children often want a taste of what you are eating. Encourage them to taste the vegetables on your plate. Good nutrition is something you want to share."

"LOSE 12-30 POUNDS, TONE YOUR HIPS, THIGHS & ABS IN 12 WEEKS, GUARANTEED"

"I am 24 years old and I joined Get In Shape For Women about 2-1/2 months ago, not because I had a lot of weight to lose or for health reasons, but because I knew I could do better for myself. Thanks to my trainers, Mike, Dave and Jess for helping me realize what I'm capable of and for never allowing me to give up. I have lost 16 pounds and went from a size 10 to a size 4! I have also lost 11% body fat. But it is not only about the way I look, it is about how I feel knowing that I am taking care of the only body I have."

great room, which can also be reached by walking straight ahead through the foyer.

A gas fireplace flanked by wide, tall windows creates a focal point in the bright and spacious great room. This lofty space is totally open to the nook and kitchen. Glass doors in the nook slide open to let in summer breezes and provide easy access to a partially covered patio.

Counters and cupboards wrap around three sides of the C-shaped kitchen. A work island adds even more storage and work space, and the roomy walk-in pantry fills one entire corner. The built-in desk alcove in the nook is perfect for a phone, a computer, and for keeping on top of household bills.

Laundry appliances and a powder room are close by, on either side of a hallway that links the kitchen to the garage.
